Houses With No Tax
Dippy D's $200

—By Arthur Brisbane—

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 24—Conspicuous citizens of Florida, including Carl Fisher and Edward C. Romfh, president of the Miami First National Bank, advocate a change in real estate taxation that interests every region.

They would exempt from all taxation the house in which a man lives, up to a certain value on house and land, suggesting, reasonably, that a man should have somewhere on earth a place that really belongs to him and his children, as long as they last, once he has paid for it.

This suggestion, if carried out, would bring millions to live in Florida. It presents a pleasant change from other plans that would compel every American to spend his life pursued by tax gatherers, with no hope this side of the undertaker's embalming department.

In Florida men take business as it is, philosophically, cheerfully. When you have survived a real estate boom, created 99 per cent by men from outside the state, the explosion of that boom, a big hurricane and the Mediterranean fly, little things do not excite you.

Some true stories of the land boom days should be preserved for instruction and warning. A concern decided recently to sell two Miami lots in the nearby business section, at present reasonable prices, for $1500 above a mortgage of $2000. Records showed that the lots had been sold during the boom for four thousand dollars, six thousand, twenty thousand, fifty thousand, and the last sale, on which the buyer paid down twenty thousand cash, was for NINETY THOUSAND DOLLARS.

Now everybody having come down to earth again, the lots are sold for $1500 with the original $2000 mortgage still on them. Nobody ever paid that.

Some day they will be worth twenty thousand, because they will bring in good interest on that amount of money.

Another story by Mr. Romfh. A man whom he knew slightly, later known as "Dippy D," came to the bank saying, "I suppose you wouldn't lend me $100 to see if I can get started?" Mr. Romfh said he would. "I suppose you wouldn't make that $200, so that I can bring my wife down from Jacksonville?" Mr. Romfh said he would make it $200.

With that $200 "Dippy D" performed wonders in the boom. He "ran himself up to millions of dollars' worth of transactions." During the course of which he got rid of his original wife and acquired a new, younger one, eventually he jumped from a steamer in mid-ocean, thus cancelling all mortgages.

On the other hand, as A. D. Lasker, of Chicago, remarked today in his fine house at the edge of the ocean, "while prices are not what they were, there are improvements

"For instance, before Carl Fisher and others developed this Miami Beach front, not so long ago, you could buy land along here, including this land on which my house and that of John Hertz, next door, stand, for 12 cents an acre. You can't buy it now for $100,000 an acre, and you never will be able to buy it as cheaply as $100,000 an acre."

To have land go from $1500 to $90,000 and then drop to $3500 does seem discouraging. On the other hand, to have land go from 12 cents an acre to $200,000 an acre and stay there, is NOT discouraging.

And when you own real estate you are your own board of directors, and don't have to worry about what some other board of directors is doing with your property.

Much might be learned by professional financiers in New York and amateur bankers in Washington by consulting Mr. Romfh, head of the First National Bank here.

During the boom excited crowds piled $77,000,000 in cash into his bank. He saw that pile of cash dwindle to $12,000,000, and a line five or six blocks long outside his bank waiting to draw out money. He shows you a photograph of that line framed in his office. He paid everybody that came, did not rediscount the notes of any client, and is still in the banking business, shock proof and fool proof.

He can tell you how the well meant working of the Federal Reserve system has caused thousands of small country banks to go to pieces. Such a man as Eugene Meyer, Jr., head of the Federal Reserve, who combines, as someone has well said, ability with character, might talk to Mr. Romfh about small bankers and small business men and householders that depend on them.

In the words of the old showman, "bear in mind and remember" that this column does not advise you to buy real estate, here or anywhere else on earth.

Sales Tax Rushed for Quick Vote

HOUSE BEATS EXEMPTION ON LIGHTS

First Ballot on Bill to Balance Budget Shows Dozens of Absentees

Washington, March 24 (INS)—The House today came to grips on the manufacturers' sales tax, with galleries crowded and the air surcharged with excitement.

Immediately after the House convened the most controversial feature of the $1,096,000,000 tax boost was ordered up for action.

In a fighting mood after a day's rest ordered by his physician, Acting Chairman Crisp (D.), Georgia, of the ways and means committee asked approval of amendments to the sales tax section eliminating all foodstuffs, clothing, farm products and other necessaries from the tax.

With these changed the tax is estimated to produce $460,000,000 instead of $595,000,000 as originally proposed for an emergency period ending June 30, 1934.

The manufacturers' tax, described by leaders as the "heart" of the bill, is necessary if Congress is to balance the budget without laying hardships on a few particular industries, Crisp maintained.

LIGHT EXEMPTION FAILS

It was attacked by opponents—Rep. Doughton (D.) of North Carolina, Rankin (D) Mississippi and LaGuardia (R) New York—as "an attempt to shift the tax burden to the poor people."

The House defeated an amendment by Rep. Barbour (R.), California, exempting all electric power and energy from the 2¼ per cent tax, by a vote of 54 to 153.

Crisp opposed the amendment, saying it would take $12,000,000 annual revenue out of the bill.

The House adopted an amendment by Rep. Burtness (R.), North Dakota, exempting farm machinery parts from tax, but refused to exempt harness and harness hardware.

The committee was prepared, if the sales tax is defeated, to recommend taxes to take its place.

These include a one-cent-a-gallon tax on gasoline, tax on domestic stamp tax on checks and other instruments, tax on automobile sales and similar levies.

The opposition was divided. Some proposed different forms of taxation, including special sales tax to wipe out the Treasury deficit. Others proposed to raise money by selling bonds, thus increasing the national debt.

BLOCK LA GUARDIA PLAN

LaGuardia proposed the House accept the committee amendments exempting food, clothing and other necessities from the sales tax and then proceed to a vote on an amendment of Representative Doughton striking out the first paragraph.

When this plan was blocked the House began consideration of amendments under the usual rules.

Crisp told the House that he believed the amendment of Representative Cullen (D.) of New York, legalizing 2.75 per cent beer and taxing it, would be in order. It, however, must come to a later section of the sales tax provision.

Representative Johnson (R.) of Washington served notice he would offer amendments placnig 100 per cent tax on goods allegedly made in Russia by forced labor and a tax to equalize the depreciation in foreign money which has worked to the disadvantage of American exporters.

Representative Lehlbach (R.), New Jersey, obtained the floor to offer the first amendment. He proposed to exempt from the sales tax merchant vessels and furnishings built or purchased with money lent by the government under the merchant marine act, if the loan exceeded 50 per cent of the total cost.

Lehlbach's amendment was adopted my a teller vote, 149 to 145.

Millions in Art, Gems Untaxed

Millions of dollars' worth of jewels, works of art and other property are escaping taxation in Massachusetts, State Tax Commissioner Henry F. Long declared today.

He made this statement before the legislative committee on taxation and constitutional law, sitting jointly, while urging favorable consideration of his petitio for an amendment to the constitutio authorizing the Legislature to change tax laws.

"There have been cases in this state where wealthy persons have escaped taxation through deliberate evasion of law by secreting jewels and other personal property of large value," Long said. "In other instances they have taken advantage of the law to avoid paying their share of taxation.

"I have in mind the case of a very wealthy woman, recently deceased, who escaped substantial taxation on works of art valued at millions by merely opening her galleries to the public one day a year. In that way her art collection was made exempt from taxation.

"The kind of personal property I have mentioned, especially jewelry, is steadily disappearang so far as taxation purposes is concerned and it is about time some method should be adopted to force owners to declare it. I think this can best be done by authorizing the general court, by means of an amendment to the constitution to enact legislation to bring in substantial amounts of taxable property not now assessed."

Long said receipts from state income tax will fall $6,000,000 thsi year.

GIRL IN DEATH PLUNGE FROM MAN'S BATH

Leaves Note in Apartment of Broker Randolph, Brother-in-Law of Ogden Mills

New York, March 24 (AP)—A 23-year-old girl identified [illegible] Laura Anderson died this morning in Mt. Sinai Hospital after leaping from a window of the luxurious apartment of Philip S. P. Randolph, Jr., socially prominent broker.

[illegible] was found in a court beneath the bathroom window of Randolph's fifth floor apartment shortly before midnight.

A note, pinned to her coat, which with her hat and purse had been left in the Randolph bath, identified her.

"DON'T TELL MY PEOPLE"

The note, addressed to "Dear Thomas," told of her regret at "not being able to keep a promise" and asked that her mother, Mrs. Mileson Smith of Toronto, not be advised of her suicide.

'Please let them think it was an accident," she wrote.

Randolph was not in the apartment at the time of the leap. Today he was in North Carolina. His brother, S. Emlen Randolph of Philadelphia, refused to discuss the suicide.

A roommate of Miss Anderson identified the body. She said the girl had been living with her several months in East 86th st., but she knew nothing more about her.

MILLS' BROTHER-IN-LAW

Randolph's sister, the former Mrs. John R. Fell of Philadelphia, is now the wife of Ogden L. Mills, Secretary of the United States Treasury.

A member of the Philadelphia Racquet Club, Randolph was once a star on the Philadelphia Country Club's polo team and has won trophies at amateur golf tournaments.

On October 28, 1930, Randolph and Mrs. Madeline Cochrane Randolph, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Cochrane of Hewlett, L. I., were divorced. They had been married 10 years. She charged mental cruelty. A property settlement was made out of court and details of the suit were not made public.

PARLIAMENT HEARS IRISH 'WAR' CRY

Laborites Demand Britain Recant on "Ultimatum" to De Valera

By HARRY K. REYNOLDS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

London, March 24 (INS)—The cry of "war" was raised in the House of Commons on the Irish question again this afternoon.

Supporting a measure asking government assurance that no important step be taken in the Irish issue without consent of Parliament, James Maxton, left wing Laborite leader, said:

"The British government has replied to De Valera by making what we regard as a declaration of war which can only be backed up by force."

De Valera's threat to abolish the oath of allegiance and withhold the Irish land annuities came before the House on a motion to adjourn for the Easter recess.

BUCHANAN STARTS ROW

George Buchanan, Scottish Laborite, raised the question by demanding that the government give full assurances "that no serious step be taken which might embroil Britain and the Irish Free State without consenting Commons."

In supporting Buchanan's motion, Maxton maintained that De Valera had taken a step for which he had received a mandate from the people in the recent elections.

"Behind yesterday's statement (by J. H. Thomas, Dominions Secretary,)" said Maxton, "there was a cold-blooded decision in exactly the same attitude as involved in the government's Indian policy."

Dr. J. H. Morris-Jones, Liberal, interrupted, asking:

"Does the honorable gentleman expect the House to belive him when he says there is no alternative but war?"

"There are a lot of alterna-

Bares Big Gang Plot to Free Capone

Washington, March 24 (AP)—An attempt by criminal organizations headed by Al Capone to regain the gangster his freedom through control of public officials was charged today by Frank J. Loesch, president o the Chicago Crime Commission, in a letter to Senator Borah.

Loesch, in a long letter reviewing attempts of Chicago gangland to control labor unions and public offices, said:

"It is my opinion based upon these facts and other indications that the combinations here now formed for getting men into public office turn very largely on the effort of the criminal organizations headed by Al Capone to control sufficient of the elected public officials," party lines not cutting much figure, to get Capone freed from the penitentiary sentences now hanging over his head, or secure reduction of sentences."

Loesch said those who knew the situation believe two-thirds of all labor unions in Chicago are controlled by or pay tribute to Al Capone's organizations.

He charged also that two "personal adherents of Al Capone" are members of the Illinois State Senate.

Washington, March 24 (AP)—Sanford aBtes, director of the Federal Prison Bureau, intends to kepe the government's choice of a prison for Al Capone secret until the gangster starts his sentence for tax evasion.

Capone yesterday received permission to remain in Cook County jail, Illinois, for at least 30 days, while appealing to the Supreme Court for a ruling on his case.

COMB SEA HUNTING WAGNER, GUNMAN

First Suspect Named; Chicagoan Back on Capone Trail; New Note to Lindbergh

BULLETIN

Hopewell, N. J., March 24 (INS)—A man who said he was Joseph Hnat of Philadelphia arrived at Hopewell, N. J., today and told authorities over the telephone that he has information as to the whereabouts of the kidnaped Lindbergh baby. He was hurried to the headquarters of Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of the state police.

Hopewell, N. J., March 24—Col. Lindbergh was reported today to have received a note similar in writing to one accepted as having previously come from the kidnapers of their baby. The message was said to have assured him the infant was safe and ransom overtures would be begun later.

The day's biggest news, especially so because of its significance, was the admission by the New Jersey State Police that they are actually seeking a suspect. For the first time since the baby was stolen, 23 days ago, a man has been named as a suspect. He is Abie Wagner, an East Side gangster in New York, a "known kidnaper" and an associate of the hunted Harry Fleischer, head of the so-called "Purple Gang" of Detroit. Police report positively he was seen in the vicinity of Hopewell a few days before the kidnaping. He since has disappeared and several raids here failed to catch either him or Fleischer.

Far out to sea, to include the ships of the "rum fleet" anchored beyond the 12-mile limit off the New Jersey coast, the ever-widening hunt for the Lindbergh baby kidnapers stretched today.

The direct cause for extending the search for the abducted 21-month-old son of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh to the ocean was the anxiety of police to apprehend Wagner on suspicion he had some underworld information bearing on the kidnaping.

Wagner, who twice escaped as-

WALLACE SAYS N. J. POLICE TOLD HIM TO KEEP SECRETS

sassins' bullets in fued wars, was reported to be in hiding with Fleischer, also sought in connection with the abduction.

Attempts to find either or both on some vessel were started after several raids by New Jersey state police and detectives on houses in Greenport, L. I., made to disprove "tips" the two gangsters were barricading themselves in one of them.

A truckman who told police he saw a car in Newark with two men and a baby a few hours after the kidnaping was reported to have identified Fleischer and another criminal from rogues' gallery photographs as occupants of the automobile and started the present phase of the intensive investigation.

SEEN NEAR HOME

Wagner, a "known kidnaper" of New York's lower East Side, according to the news bulletin issued today by Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the New Jersey state police, was alleged to have been seen in central New Jersey shortly before the kidnaping of the baby and has not been seen since. Fleischer, the statement declares, has been "unaccounted for" since the Price kidnaping in Connecticut.

Schwarzkopf's statement with reference to Wagner and Fleischer said:

"Able Wagner, recorded as a known kidnaper, was alleged to have been seen around the central part of New Jersey shortly before the kidnaping. Since the kidnaping he has not been seen. We want to find him to question him.

"Investigation covering the whole state of New Jersey, New York city, Long Island and Philadelphia have not as yet disclosed his whereabouts.

FLEISCHER DISAPPEARS

"Harry Fleischer, involved in the Price kidnaping in Connecticut, has been unaccounted for since the kidnaping. A report associates Able Wagner with Fleischer. Every effort is being made to locate Fleischer so he may be questioned."

No information has been received from either Colombia or the Panama Canal Zone authorities on the reported finding of the baby on an island near Buena Ventura, according to Schwarzkopf.

"No information has been received from Erie, Pa., authorities concerning their activities," the statement further declared. "Police of Pennsylvania have been according excellent co-operation.

"A number of informers purporting to have important information were interviewed yesterday without results."

Other developments were:

1—Considerable significance was attached today to the return to his home in Chicago of H. W. Caldwell from a conference with Col. Lindbergh and the stay granted Al Capone a few hours after his appeal for a rehearing had been denied.

Caldwell has conferred with Col. Lindbergh three times in the past five days and his evidence in the kidnaping is reported to be "extremely important" and the Lindbergh family expressed great confidence in the information.

2—In the seclusion of their lonely hillside home, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and his wife still clung to a thread of hope that their kidnaped son is alive and that his abductors will soon instruct them how they can pay the $50,000 ransom.

3—A series of 10 raids made on houses in northern New Jersey and in New York failed to disclose any clue to the whereabouts of the Lindbergh baby or the kidnapers.

4—Henry "Red" Johnson, sailor sweetheart of Betty Gow, the Lindbergh nursemaid, remained in jail at Newark, N. J., and federal immigration officials made no move to press their charge against him while the recheck of his statements in the Lindbergh case is still being pursued.

5—Officials of Hunterdon County, headed by Chief Detective Elmer Hand and Sheriff William B. Weam, who are demanding a grand jury probe of alleged police bungling in the case, have begun a separate investigation along lines they cloaked in secrecy.

6—Morris Rosner, one of Lindbergh's undercover agents, was at the aviator's estate for several hours again, and then left for New York, refusing to answer questions concerning his activities.

7—Salvatore Spitale and Irving Bitz, underworld characters named by Lindbergh as his emissaries in negotiations with the kidnapers, also were silent regarding their efforts. Bitz was in Montreal yesterday, but declined to say whether his trip had any bearing on the abduction. Spitale was reported to be due back today from Detroit, having made a flying trip there, shrouding his movements in mystery.

8—The ladder used by the kidnapers was brought here again from Trenton. Police explained they wanted to check it against wood found on an old farm about four miles from the Lindbergh estate.

SECRET CODE USED

It was revealed that the state authorities have been in touch with federal officials in Washington and that all developments in the case bearing on the naval search have been relayed by secret code to coast guard vessels via the federal radio station in New York.

The New Jersey police officials refused to state whether the fact that Johnson is a seaman has any connection with the coast guard search, but they continued to admit that the red-headed sailor has not been cleared of suspicion.

Vessels of the coast guard bases at New York City, New London, Ct.; Cape May, N. J.; Norfolk, Va., and Florida have been co-operating in the search and a large number of suspicious looking boats have already been stopped and searched for the Lindbergh baby, it was revealed.

Despite the evident futility of the official police investigation and the failure of the kidnapers to negotiate, the Lindberghs believe their 21-month-old son will be returned to them safe and sound, a friend of the family who visited them disclosed.

NOTE GIVES HOPE

The Lindberghs, it was learned, based their hopeful anticipation on the fact that a note received about 10 days ago assured them that their child was safe and that negotiations would be opened at a later date.

That note seemed to have come from the kidnapers who left an original $50,000 ransom note in the nursery. It bore certain striking similarities.

While state police were anxious to catch Wagner and Fleischer, they refused to listen to a Schenectady youth who had been asked to visit Hopewell to describe three men whom he says he overheard debating what to do with the Lindbergh baby.

After eavesdropping on the conversation on an Albany night boat on March 10, Ralph Shenton, 19, says he telephoned John Fogarty, one of the private detectives retained by Col. Henry Breckenridge, Lindbergh's personal advisor.

Fogarty asked him to come to Hopewell, he declared. He made the trip at his own expense, arriving Tuesday night.

"I had been playing cards with three men on the boat," Shenton said. "They made a couple of remarks about the Lindbergh case that made me suspicious, so after they had gone to their cabin, I listened outside.

"'There's no use getting burned up about it,' I heard one of them say. 'We can't return the kid or get in touch with the family until things quiet down.' There was some more, but I couldn't make it out.

"They were all young—under 30. One of them was called Eddie. I got the impression that they were members of a Trenton gang."

"SCRAM," SAYS OFFICER

When Shenton attempted to go to state police headquarters on the Lindbergh estate yesterday to turn over descriptions of the trio, a trooper shouted:

"Scram! Another attempt to get in here will result in a black eye for somebody"

A former employe of a Wall st. brokerage house, Shenton was on his way to Schenectady after recovering from an operation when he met the three card players. They had planned to leave the boat at Newburgh, he said, but continued to Albany.

Making his first appearance in the case for several days, Morris Rosner, one of Lindbergh's underworld emissaries, left the Sourland home in a taxicab during the afternoon. He was unshaven and appeared tired.

"Not a word," he replied hastily when he was asked if there were any new developments.

Later, the automobile of John Baird of Marine City, Mich., drove up to the Lindbergh estate and was permitted to enter by state troopers. It contained three women and three men. The purpose of their visit was not disclosed. Baird has been visiting his daughter, Mrs. Ray Wensey, of West Orange, N. J.

Lieut. Thomas J. Roe of Newark, N. J., police department today had absolved Ignace Blaustein, prisoner in the Pocatello, Idaho, jail, of any connection with the Lindbergh kidnaping case. Lieut. Roe, returning to New Jersey from Pocatello, described Blaustein as a psychopathic case.

Blaustein, after being arrested in Boise for the theft of a suit of clothes in Pocatello, told police he had driven the kidnap car. Police investigation showed that he was registered at a Denver hotel on the night of the kidnaping.

The state police revealed that they have been investigating a number of angles in the bleak hills that surround the isolated country home of the Lindberghs on Sourland Mountain.

NEW ROAD FOUND

One of these is a narrow road found to lead from an abandoned summer cottage to the rear of the Lindberghs' 500-acre wooded estate.

A farm adjoining the summer cottage is owned by Edward Kutchera, a New York carpenter, who spends week-ends at Hopewell. Kutchera himself reported that a small wooden bridge over a gully under part of the road had been mysteriously repaired by some one recently.

Meanwhile, the usual procession of clues and rumors continued to pour into the Lindbergh home. The Flying Colonel and his wife—reluctant to leave because at any moment they hope long anticipated word will arrive—have remained at their estate constantly since the abduction 23 nights ago.

An inquiry was sent to the Lindbergh estate asking whether arrangements had been made for any further conferences with H. Wallace Caldwell, Chicago school board trustee, who visited there to turn over information he had.

Col. Schwarzkopf, head of the State Police, issued this reply:

"No arrangements were made for another conference with Mr. Caldwell. The information given has been carefully investigated and has no bearing of value on the Lindbergh case."

Lindbergh Case Political Issue

Trenton, N. J., March 24—Politics will play an important part in the proposed investigation of State Police work in the Lindbergh kidnaping, it was disclosed at Trenton.

Although State Senator Emerson L. Richards' charge that the police have "thoroughly bungled the job" is echoed all over New Jersey, the question of an official probe will be a clean cut Democratic-Republican issue.

Attorney-General William Stevens within the next few days is expected to appoint a new prosecutor for Hunterdon County, where the grand jury is scheduled to meet April 12.

Since Stevens is a close associate of Gov. A. Harry Moore, the appointee unquestionably will be a cog in the Moore machine. And since Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, State Police Superintendent, also is a Moore man, the new prosecutor will make no effort to embarrass the police.

In fact, he probably will not even make any move to present kidnaping evidence to the grand jury.

Boy Detective Does His Bit

New York, March 24—Two automobile loads of detectives poured into a Brooklyn apartment on a tip that letters about the Lindbergh case were being mailed from that address.

They found Thomas La Salle, 18, and crippled, busily working out clues.

The police sergeant looked at the lad's paralyzed legs, his eager face, and the pile of data on the table.

The boy admitted writing letters and said:

"I've been taking a correspondence course in crime detection, and I get 100 on every lesson. As I figure it out, sergeant, there's a woman in this case (he whispered her name) who hasn't told all she knows. I'd press her a little more."

Ludlow Collector Can't Obtain Bonds

Ludlow, March 24 (AP)—An unusual situation confronts Tax Collector Albert E. Booth, who because of uncollected back taxes has been unable to obtain bonds from surety concerns. The amount of uncollected taxes is about $12,000.

It is planned to have a deputy collector appointed to round up delinquent property owners.

CALDWELL CLUE 'IMPORTANT'

Chicago, March 24 (AP)—H. Wallace Caldwell, member and former president of the board of education, upon returning home from the east last night said he would continue his private investigation into the kidnaping of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., in Chicago and was hopeful the outcome would be "satisfactory."

He declined to say what information he had, but declared it was considered important by "the officials." He admitted spending three days and several evenings on the estate of Col. Lindbergh at Hopewell, but said he was told by Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf that "the less said of your visit and information the better."

"I will continue to work here and I will have help," he added. "I cannot say more because what I might say might hinder the investigation. Any news which may develop will come from Hopewell."

Fleisch Was Linked to New Haven Kidnaping

New Haven, Conn., March 24 (INS)—Efforts to apprehend Harry Fleisch, alias Fleischer, Detroit gangster, for questioning in the Lindbergh baby abduction, today revived memories of the Max Price kidnaping case here two years ago in which Fleischer and other alleged members of the "Purple Gang" were questioned.

Max Price, elderly real estate operator, was kidnaped January 28, 1930, and by noon that day a widespread search for him and his abductors were under way. The next day a letter to Mrs. Price demanded $25,000 ransom, and subsequent notes threatened to bomb the Price home in Kensington st.

Price walked into the Bridgeport railroad station at midnight two weeks later. He was blindfolded, and thought he had been help captive near Danbury. His captors, whom he later could not definitely identify as Fleischer, Abie Wagner, "Scotty Gow" or other Purple Gang members now sought in connection with the Lindbergh case, freed him from an automobile when he promised to pay ransom. Price insisted, however, that he never paid.

LINK IN LINDY, DONNELLY CASE

Bloomsburg, Pa., March 24 (AP)—Kansas City detectives, seeking Martin Depew in connection with the kidnaping of Mrs. Nell Donnelly in Kansas City last December, said today they had information which indicated connections between the Donnelly case and the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby.

Detectives Cole and Brennan have been working in Pennsylvania for several months, tracing Depew, whose wife is detained in Kansas City after being arrested here.

"We have information that will be more than a blind lead," Brennan said, "but it may be a couple of days before we get to Trenton with it."

Oath That DeValera Seeks to Abolish

Dublin, March 24 (INS)—Here is the cause of the trouble between the Irish Free State and Great Britain, the Free State oath of allegiance to the British crown:

"I do solemnly swear true faith and allegiance to the Constitution of the Irish Free State as by law established, and that I will be faithful to His Majesty King George V and his heirs and successors by law, in virtue of the common citizenship of Ireland with Great Britain and her adherence to and membership of the group of nations forming the British Commonwealth of Nations."

This oath is taken by all members of the Dail and Senate upon assuming office.

WARNS BRITAIN OF IRISH 'WAR'

tives," replied Maxton, "but if the government's attitude is not modified there is none but war. We want to issue the warning that during these 10 days of Easter holidays no crucial decisions should be taken which will create a situation impossible for Parliament or the nation to rectify after the recess."

In the absence of the Dominions secretary, Capt. Margesson, government whip, replied:

"I am certain the House and the country will give their whole confidence to the government; if a point of great issue arises the government will grant a day for discussion."

At the conclusion of the debate parliament recessed until April 5.

De Valera Calls Cabinet to Reply to Britain

Dublin, March 24 (INS)—The Brotish government's reply to Eamonn De Valera's proposal to abolish the oath of allegiance and withhold land annuities from the British treasury was received today.

President De Valera of the Irish Free State executive council immediately called a cabinet meeting for tonight to consider the British note and possibly draft a reply.

The newspaper Am Phoeblacht, organ of the Irish Republican party, today announced arrangements for a Republican demonstration in "all Irish centers" Sunday, commemorating the Easter uprising of 1916 against British rule.

"The purpose," the newspaper said, "is to honor the men who died in the cause of a free and independent Irish republic."

Well-informed Irish circles are discussing reports that De Valera is seriously considering exercising his prerogative and asking the governor-general to dissolve the Dail and call a special election for April in the hope of obtaining a clear majority for his Fianna Fail party.

This would give him a clear mandate from the people, authorizing him to repudiate the Anglo-Irish treaty and cast the die for complete Irish independence.

TAYLOR POINTS CHIEF ROUTES TO PROSPERITY

U. S. Steel Official Calls for Return to Unwritten Law of Supply and Demand

Paying tribute to "old fashioned New England prudence," Myron G. Taylor today declared that a return to the unwritten law of supply and demand, with controlled production and "justifiable" price control, was one of the chief routes to renewed prosperity throughout the world.

Taylor, chairman of the finance committee of the United States Steel Corporation, also cited the necessity for continuing tariff protection for American industries, and warned against the menace of increasing taxation.

WARNS AGAINST "CONTROL"

Speaking to business men of Greater Boston at a luncheon in his honor at the Boston Chamber of Commerce, Taylor traced the separation of industry from the law of supply and demand to the World War, and declared that they have not fully found each other since.

He warned against the attempt to find solution of the present troubles through nationalization of industry and the artificial fixing of commodity prices through attempted stabilization by government control. Both, he said, are contrary to the law of supply and demand.

"Controlled production," he continued, "may be expected to come about automatically as our surplus stocks become exhausted and as competition, spurred by necessity, discards obsolescent production equipment and adopts a justifiable price control that sacrifices some part of production volume to secure reasonable price levels for commodities. This also will bring about a re-distribution of work and a readjustment of living conditions throughout the country, which in industry will mean a reduced working period and a consequent greater leisure for the individual."

STRESSES STABLE TARIFF

Stressing the need for stable tariff protection, Taylor declared:

"If in a moment of fright we should tear down those tariff barriers, behind which we have built this great nation, we would destroy our economic safeguards. Such a policy would offer no inducements for our products to flow out, but would encourage competitive products of other countries to flow in."

He cited the evil of excessive taxation as one of the difficulties to be confronted in the restoration of normal activity.

JAPS, CHINESE GLOOMY AFTER PEACE SESSION

Opposing Armies "Dig in" for Possible New Conflict Near Shanghai

Shanghai, March 24 (AP)—The Chinese and Japanese armies went methodically about the business of grooming their trappings of war outside Shanghai today as formal peace negotiations finally got under way in the International Settlement.

China was represented by Gen. Tai Chi, Shanghai's military garrison commander, succeeding Gen. Chiang Kuang Nai. Chiang walked out on the opening session yesterday, declaring he could not sit as military delegate unless Japan named a full ranking general to sit opposite him.

PEACE SESSION BRIEF

The first session started at noon today and was very brief. When the delegates filed out of the British consulate both Chinese and Japanese were gloomy, but neutral observers were in a hopeful mood. They will meet again tomorrow.

Meanwhile the Japanese military forces of Gen. Yoshinori Shirakawa continued to strengthen their positions along the 12½-mile ultimatum limit around the city. Likewise, the Chinese were digging in busily opposite them.

FACE STIFF PROBLEM.

There was evidence that the negotiators were up against a stiff problem. Specifically they were trying to arrange a formal armistice providing for withdrawal of Japanese troops into the International Settlement, and establishment of a neutral zone.

Government Crisis Averted in Japan

Tokio, March 24 (AP)—An immediate crisis in Japan's political affairs was averted today by a compromise.

Premier Tsuyoshi Inukai's regime was saved by Seiyukai intra-party agreement for reorganization of the cabinet with Kisaburo Suzuchi in the post of home minister, a key position.

The special session of the Diet to approve the gold embargo and appropriate money for the Manchurian and Shanghai campaigns will end formally tomorrow without a voice being raised against the general principles of operations abroad.

Meanwhile, the War Office announced several detachments of 1932 army conscripts would begin sailing today for Manchuria, to replace troops whose service period has expired.

Simultaneously dispatches from Harbin said the entire strength of Gen. Tamon's army would be sent against insurgent Chinese forces in Kirin to "remove a menace to the new Manchurian government."

TODAY

But it does advise you to explore your country thoroughly, including this extraordinarily beautiful and brilliant Florida peninsula, and the City of Miami which will be one day to aviation what Chicago is to railroads. You learn from Frank B. Shutts, who owns the Miami Herald, that Miami is already the world's greatest flying city, the spot whence passenger and mail traffic radiates to all the Americas south of us.

Men, interesting and intelligent, come here to spend their winters in sunshine instead of fighting draughts and colds, in the north.

Cyrus H. K. Curtis has his big yacht, the Lyndonia, anchored here. Nearby are other yachts which indicate that not all currency is hoarded.

There is a big yacht belonging to Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., head of General Motors, another that belongs to Chief Engineer Kettering of General Motors, many other big yachts and houseboats.

If the pursuit of pleasure, sport in any form, interests you, fishing, shooting, this is your country. One young man from Dr. Mather Abbot's Lawrenceville School, here for the Easter vacation, hoped that he might catch a sail fish. The first day with the renowned Capt. Tommy Gifford, he caught one six feet long, and many other fish. He got two more fish even bigger the second day. At this moment he is off to the depths of the Everglades, 150 miles away, with Indian guides, looking for wild cats that weigh up to 50 pounds, and hoping to find a panther, an animal that grows bigger in Florida than anywhere else, according to guides.

From the Everglades he will hurry to a reef off the coast of Cuba, where devil fish 18 feet across have been seen, and "broadbill" swordfish are plentiful. In the Everglades are alligators, easy to shoot but hard to recover, as the animal insists on sliding off the bank into the water when shot. You hunt at night, use a flashlight, and know you have met an alligator when you see two other flashlights. His eyes shining at you. He foolishly turns toward the flashlight.

Not a dull place, this, for the young in search of excitement.

It is also a good place for those that are older, as Mr. Rockefeller, who spends every winter here and is long past 90, will tell you.

You ought to see this place in winter, the coast of Maine in summer, the Pacific Coast from San Diego to Seattle all the year round, and the wonderful Gulf Coast with its fertility, including the tropical isthmus of Texas, which will soon produce more grapefruit than any other place in the Union.

Everything in America is worth seeing, and you should see everything.

Chicago, March 24—The mention of par, divots, tee, fore and many other golf terms have become positively sickening to Helen Hicks, national golf champion, she has revealed.

Helen Hicks

The war clubs that accompany the champion on every trip were strangely missing when she left her home at Long Island, N. Y., and here, where she is visiting friends, the familiar golf bag is missing.

"I'm fed up on the game after those tournaments in Florida," Miss Hicks said. "Although I do believe I am improving."

Farmer Wants Debts Collected, Says Capper

New York, March 24—The American farmer is convinced that if this country were to insist on payment of war debts to it, excessive military expenditures by Europe would be discouraged, said U. S. Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas.

Senator Capper

He spoke before the World Affairs Institute, held under auspices of seven important women's organizations.

"The annual outlay for military purposes of eight principal debtor nations is more than seven times what they agreed to pay us on account of their war debts," Senator Capper said. Cosmetics, Mrs. Trevor said she found out, enlarged and clogged the pores of the skin and eventually cause wrinkles.

MOTHERS OF 26 AND 22 FIGHT FOR $500,000 IN ODD WILL ## FIGHT 'TO ROB CHAMPION PARENT'

Toronto Women Have Chance at Fortune; Brewery Stock Is Left to Preacher

Toronto, Ont., March 24—A mother who has borne 26 children in 22 years is entitled to a half-million dollars.

This is the opinion of Mrs. Henry Brown, holder of that formidable record, who expressed deep disappointment today over the introduction of a bill in the Legislature which may deprive her of the prize bequeathed in the will of Charles Vance Millar to the Toronto woman who bore the most children.

Mrs. Grace Bagnato, runnerup in the maternity marathon, who has had 21 children and is still under 40, also flayed the measure which may deprive her of her chance at a fortune.

COL. PRICE FIGHTS

The terms of the quixotic will, bequeathing $500,000 to the Toronto woman who should have borne the most children ten years after Millar's death, in 1926, are being contested by the attorney-general, Col. W. H. Price, who seeks to have the money converted to the uses of the University of Toronto.

"I do not think any government is justified in setting aside the bequest of Mr. Millar," said Henry Brown, father of the 26, today. "I think that to upset a will it would be necessary to show that the maker was not of sound mind.

"We are all Canadians for generations back on both sides, and if anybody were entitled to the bequest we think we are.

"What is the use in making a will if it can be set aside so easily?"

Mrs. Bagnato, who is proud of her family, said:

"Surely a will made by a man who was as clever as Mr. Millar and a king's counsel noted for his great business ability, cannot be upset so easily.

BREWERY STOCK TO PASTORS

"I knew there were possibilities of my family not gaining the bequest and so I did not count greatly on it, hence cannot say that the act of the government means a great disappointment. But at the same time it seems incredible that the bequest can be set aside."

Mrs. Brown's living children number 13. Mrs. Bagnato has 11 children alive.

Introducing his bill into the Legislature, Col. Price quoted a section in which the testator admitted the document was "necessarily uncommon and capricious because I have no near relatives and no duty rests upon me to leave property at my death." Cynically, the will added:

"What I do leave is proof of my folly in gathering and retaining more than I required in my lifetime."

Other provisions of the will were a share of brewery stock to every active Protestant minister and Orange lodge in Toronto.; a share of a Jockey Club to every minister in Windsor and Sandwich, Ont.; $10,000 to a friend "bested in a business deal," and a sum for masses for a friend "who will need them wherever he is."

ELY SEES A NEW SHIP LAUNCHED

Kearny, N. J., March 24 (AP)—The $5,000,000 Grace liner Santa Rosa got her first taste of water today in the muddy Hackensack river. A bottle of champagne was broken on the nose of the new liner by Miss Wendi Iglehart, sponsor of the ship and daughter of D. Stewart Iglehart, president of the Grace line. The bottle was brought from California by special dispensation of the federal government.

Governors ofthree states attended the launching. A. Harry Moore of New Jersey, Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania and Joseph B. Ely of Massachusetts.

President Hoover in Washington pressed a button releasing an American flag at the bow, and the liner slid down the ways.

Mrs. Ingram Faces Order in Contempt

New York, March 24 (AP)—Mrs. Dorothy Caruso Ingram, widow of Enrico Caruso, is threatened with contempt of court proceedings for failure to file an accounting of the opera singer's estate insofar as it concerns their daughter Gloria.

It was learned today that Surrogate Foley signed an order March 8 directing Mrs. Ingram to make the accounting with ten days. It also removed her as guardian. Mrs. Ingram is believed to be in France with her daughter.

HOARDED CASH IS COMING OUT

Ann Harding's Fame Is Blamed for Divorce

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Hollywood, Cal., March 24—The public announcement made by Ann Harding and Harold Bannister that they are ending their marriage in the divorce courts surprised everyone but their closest friends.

Ann's tremendous success on the screen brought her everything but matrimonial happiness. While she was soaring ahead building a name and getting a movie queen's salary, her husband was slipping farther and farther into oblivion.

Five years and a half ago, when the slim young blonde daughter of an army colonel was playing on the stage, her leading man fell in love with her and married her. His chances for success seemed just as brilliant as her own. Neither was known outside of New York, but both had great ambitions.

Happiness, according to Ann's own letter, is at end now. She says:

"We, Harry Bannister and Ann Harding Bannister, are getting a divorce, because, during our three years in the motion picture industry, we have been placed in a position which is untenable."

"Due to Harry's constant and generous effort to forward my interests, often at the expense of his own, he is gradually losing his identity, becoming a background for my activities, and looked upon as 'Ann Harding's husband.'

"We have decided that the only way for Harry to re-establish himself in his profession is to cut the gordian knot, to set forth on his own—quite apart from me—and win his way back to the standing he enjoyed in the theater.

"We have found courage to preserve the thing we have in the way that seems best to us."

Enclosed with his wife's note is a brief message from Mr. Bannister, agreeing with his wife's statement.

Bannister's statement read:

"During the five and one-half years I have been married to Ann Harding, I have had the love, respect and devotion of the very great and lovely person who is my wife.

"Therefore, in order to preserve this in its entirety we find the apparently drastic course of divorce the quickest and best solution to our eventual complete happiness. There is nothing further that I can add to Mrs. Bannister's statement."

Tiring of playing only "bits" in pictures, Bannister recently obtained a release from his studio contract which called for a salary of $75,000 a year. He will "free lance" in more important roles.

SIX MEN SEIZED IN A ROUNDUP OF BANDITS

Six men were captured and a patrolman narrowly missed death in a crime roundup today that covered three sections of the city.

Patrolman William F. Walsh was the near victim as he chased three youths from N to 5th sts., South Boston, to Fourth and M sts.

Walsh fired several shots and a bullet winged back at him, narrowly missing his head, he reported.

Another youth was chased along Tremont st., from School st. to Hamilton pl., after an attempted break in the Parker House cigar counter.

At Elm and Hanover sts., North End, two seamen were arrested after an alleged attempt to break into an Elm st. store.

THREE ARRESTED

Patrolman Walsh cornered two youths in a doorway after the South Boston chase and took them to City Point station. They gave their names as Humphrey Kearney, 29, of E. Sixth st., and George Boudreau, 27, of N. st., both South Boston.

An hour later, Patrolman Patrick Creighton of the City Point division arrested George Twomey, 24, of Eighth st., South Boston.

The Tremont st. chase ended in the arrest of Walter Murray, 21, of Harvard st., Cambridge. Patrolmen James Downey and Daniel Castleton of the Milk st. division pounced upon him in a doorway in Hamilton pl., and held him in connection with the attempted Parker House break.

HALF-MILE CHASE

Police said a loaded Spanish "horse pistol" was found on Louis Dickinson, 19, who was arrested with Gerald Douglas, 18, in the North End chase.

Patrolman Thomas Butler of the Milk st. division sighted them as he cruised the district in a police car.

Captured after a half-mile chase, they both said they lived in Jacksonville, Fla., and were seamen aboard the liner Ozark, tied up at Charlestown.

Deputy Police Superintendent James McDevitt ordered all six held for a lineup in police headquarters so they could be viewed by victims of holdups.

Judge Joseph T. Zottoli of the municipal court was at the head table.

Judge and waiter met today in court when Pettilo was charged with keeping and exposing liquor for sale.

"Do you work?" asked the court.

"Yes, your honor," was the reply.

"When did you work last?"

"Last night, your honor."

"Where?"

"At a banquet in the Masonic Temple, judge."

"What part of the hall did you work in?"

"Right at the head table, judge."

"Do you see anyone in court here who attended the banquet?"

"No, Your Honor."

"Well," said Judge Zottoli, "our failure to recognize each other is mutual, but if I told you that I was at that table, would it refresh your recollection?"

"Um," said Pettilo, scratching his head, "if you sez you wuz dere, judge, den mebbe yo' wuz, I dunno."

Pettilo was found not guilty of the liquor charge, and left court amid general merriment. Ella Josephs, his landlady, accepted responsibility for the liquor, and was given a suspended sentence.

A shakeup of the entire Lynn police department of 150 men will be made April 4, Mayor J. Fred Manning announced today.

With the announcement came the promotion of Sergt. P. Joseph Coyne to the rank of inspector and Patrolman John Welch to the rank of sergeant. Coyne succeeds Inspector James Linnehan, who died recently.

Deputy Chief Edward D. Callahan was temporarily assigned to head the traffic bureau to replace Wilson Thorne, who retires May 1.

"The entire department will be shaken up April 4 for the good of the department," Mayor Manning said.

"Night men will be transferred to day duty and vice versa. All the changes were asked by Chief Broad."

350-FT. FENCE TO SAVE $10

Atty. William S. Kenney of 1650 Washington st., West Newton, must build a 350-foot fence around his property or pay $10 fine for keeping a barking dog.

Kenney was arraigned today in Newton on complaint of Dr. N. Emmons Paine, his neighbor, who said he had been annoyed by the barking and snapping of Kenney's pet. Several weeks ago Dr. Paine asked for a permit to carry a revolver to protect himself against the dog.

Atty. Kenney denied his pet was vicious and said the dog barked only when strangers appeared.

The case was continued until April 9, when it was indicated that Kenney would be given a suspended $10 fine if the fence were built.

ELY TOLD THAT ROOSEVELT IS STRONG HERE

With all thoughts of peace gone, the Roosevelt-for-President forces lashed out at Gov. Ely today in answer to the latter's statement in New York that "there is no sincere sentiment for Gov. Roosevelt in Massachusetts."

Gov. Ely made the statement while en route to a launching at Camden, N. J., at which he will meet former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, whose forces he heads in this state.

William H. McMasters, secretary of the national Roosevelt-for-President League, charged today that Ely "has ostracized himself from true Democratic sentiment ever since he has become Governor."

"The sentiment for Governor Roosevelt is just as sincere as in other states where Democrats are rolling up a vote of 10 to 1 for Roosevelt," McMasters said.

BRENNAN ON RADIO

In sharp contrast to the strenuous campaign being put on by the Roosevelt forces, the Smith adherents continue to be inactive insofar as rallies and the radio are concerned. In fact, Chairman Frank J. Donahue of the state committee professes to see no occasion for embarking on such activities at the present time.

James H. Brennan of Charlestown, member of the governor's council and the Roosevelt at-large slate, speaking over the radio for Mayor Curley, contended that public as a whole clearly accepts these statements of former Governor Smith as truthful:

1—That he is not a candidate.

2—That he would not seek delegates.

3—That he would make no preconvention fight.

4—That he, as leader of the party, would keep his hands off.

LARGE GAINS CITED

In no State in the Union, Brennan emphasized, not even in his own State in New York, does Smith's name appear on the ballot.

"In every state in which primaries or conventions have been held up to the present time," he continued, "with the exception of one state in which votes were recorded for a favorite son, every vote cast and pledged has been for Franklin D. Roosevelt.

"The indications are that by the 26th of April, when the primaries are held in Massachusetts, that Franklin D. Roosevelt will have recorded in his favor more than 200 votes, or nearly one-third of the vote necessary to nominate. It is apparent likewise that, notwithstanding the feeble and futile failure of President Hoover in meeting the economic depression of the past three years, he will again be the Republican standard bearer."

Bathing Suit Habit No Cause for Divorce

Tacoma, Wash, March 24 (AP)—Mrs. Frank Monia complained that her husband wore a bathing suit always, whether working at his trade of shingling roofs or sitting about the home hearth. The court said the perpetual wearing of a bathing suit was not cause of divorce, so now that's settled.

BANK TERMS IN FARMER BILL

New York, March 24 (AP)—Sen. Burton K. Wheeler (D.) Montana, said today he intends to introduce within the next few days a farmers' refinance bill with provisions parallel to those in the recently adopted measure affecting financial institutions.

"It will provide," he said, "for loans to farmers, so they can save their farms, at the same interest rate now charged by the Refinance Corporation to financial institutions.

"I don't see how the administration can very well fight it because i tcontains for the farmers almost identically the same provisions they have made in their own bill for financial institutions."

Upward Trend in Employment Seen

New York, March 24 (AP)—An upward trend in employment was noted for the first time since 1929 in figures issued by leaders of the United Action for Employment campaign for jobs for one million persons.

More than 300,000 jobs have been obtained to date, including 13,393 reported yesterday. New York state was leader for the day with 2083. Alabama was next with 1297 and Ohio third with 1089.

GEORGIA 10 TO 1 FOR ROOSEVELT

Atlanta, March 24 (AP)—Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York won Georgia's 28 convention votes in yesterday's Democratic presidential primary by overwhelming Judge G. H. Howard of Atlanta, who advocated the candidacy of Speaker John Garner.

Roosevelt had a popular plurality of approximately ten to one.

Latest returns gave him 51,071 votes to Howard's 5717. If Roosevelt captures Catoosa county's two unit votes and wins in five missing counties, as his supporters predicted, he will score a grand slam with 410 county unit votes and have the unanimous approval of the state convention.

Georgia was the first Southern state to hold a preference primary. It is the adopted state of Gov. Roosevelt who visits Warm Springs regularly for his health.

Judge Howard, who promised to give his support to Garner at the convention, conducted a vigorous fight. L. Thomas (Pat) Gillen, who managed his campaign pledged allegiance to Gov. Roosevelt if he is nominated at Chicago.

GLASS BILL HIT BY BANK HEAD

Washington, March 24 (AP)—Features of the Glass banking revision bill were criticized before a Senate banking committee today by Wilson W. Mills, chairman of the board of directors of the First Wayne National Bank of Detroit, as "disadvantageous to banks, communities, business and the country in general."

The section which would limit bank holdings of mortgages to 50 per cent of their time deposits, he said, would classify as mortgages all loans where the ultimate payment depends on real estate.

A provision requiring an appraisal of mortgages every time a bank is examined, he said, would be difficult of execution in the case of a bank such as his own, which holds 53,000 mortgages.

He advocated changing the bill to provide that the state law in force where the bank is doing business be allowed to govern in respect to mortgages.

A section increasing the reserves a bank must deposit in the Federal Reserve Bank on demand and time deposits also drew Mills' criticism.

The bill, he said, would increase the reserves "unjustly and without any benefit to the country."

Senator Glass, author of the bill, said the requirement had been made necessary by 'manipulation of time and demand deposits by bankers."

King George Revives Ceremony of Giving Pence to Poor

London, March 24 (AP)—For the first time in more than 200 years the King of England today distributed in person the traditional Royal Maundy (Holy Thursday) pence to the poor at Westminster Abbey.

James II was the last English sovereign personally to perform this office. The recipients are selected from the aged and infirm poor.

Each received 67 pence today, as many as there are years in King George's age. There were 67 men and 67 women recipients. Queen Mary accompanied the King.

Three Candidates in Field in California

San Francisco, Cal., March 24 (AP)—California Democrats face the preferential primary of May 3 with three candidates formally in the contest.

A ticket pledged to Alfred E. Smith qualified in Sacramento. Tickets supporting Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt and John N. Garner, speaker of the House of Representatives, already had qualified.

MAJ. FORTESCUE SAYS U. S. WAS LAX IN PROBE

New York, March 24 (INS)—Maj. Granville R. Fortescue, whose socially prominent wife will go on trial for the murder of one of the alleged Hawaiian attackers of their daughter, Mrs. Thalia Massie, today gave his first interview on the case.

Until this morning he had been confined to a bed in Presbyterian Hosptial, with a stubborn case of pneumonia which caused physicians twice to despair of his life.

Pacing unsteadily about a room today, he said his wife was much cheered by the arrival in Honolulu of Clarence Darrow, who will defend her at the forthcoming murder trial.

"SHOOT OR DROP THE GUN"

"In two months and a half of thinking things over," he said, "I have concluded that a federal investigation of conditions in Hawaii should have been conducted immediately after the attack on my daughter. Certainly an investigation should have followed the arrest of Mrs. Fortescue, my son-in-law, Lieut. Massie, and the enlisted man in the car with them.

"With Hawaii the United States will either have to shoot or drop the gun. It has got to dominate the islands or abandon them.

"Talk of native independence seems silly to me. The politicians there are like the carpet-baggers who seized power in the South following the Civil War, only worse, more ignorant and more unscrupulous."

CONFIDENT OF ACQUITTAL

Maj. Fortescue, a former member of the Rough Riders and an artillery officer in the A. E. F. in France, said he had received hundreds of letters of sympathy from friends and strangers since the arrest of his wife and son-in-law in Honolulu last January.

He is confident all three defendants will be acquitted of the murder charges. Already he is planning to meet his family in California and perhaps take them abroad to live for a while.

They were Charles Goldberg, Fred Howard, John Le Roy, Thomas Hunter, David Rubin, Joseph Jacobs, Harry Berman, William F. Irish, John Samuels, William Eastty, George Anderson and Henry Davis. Frank Dolan defaulted.

Bernard Stone, charged with operating the place, was held in $1000.

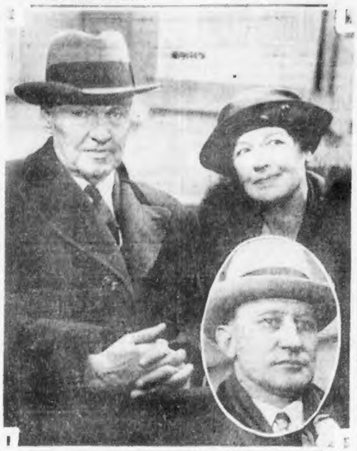
CLARENCE DARROW MRS. DARROW



G. S. LEISURE

Clarence Darrow, of Chicago, noted criminal lawyer, with Mrs. Darrow, sailed for Honolulu, where Darrow will be chief defense counsel in the "honor slaying" case. He will defend Mrs. Granville Fortescue, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie and two enlisted Navy men, on alleged charge of murdering a Hawaiian youth, accused of attacking Mrs. Thalia Massie, wife of Lieut. Massie. George S. Leisure, an attorney, of New York (inset), is a member of the defense staff. (International News Photos.)

O-o-o-h Say Can You See, Here Comes Pros-per-i-tee!

New York, March 24 (AP)—All Mr. Rudy Vallee has to do to make a name for himself—again—is to write a theme song for prosperity.

President Hoover handed the megaphone maestro the assignment yesterday when Vallee called at the White House to pay his respects.

"Mr. Hoover smilingly told me," Vallee said, "that if I could sing a song that would make people forget their troubles, he would give me a medal."

The idea of a serenade to the goddess of plenty—"Cornucopia, Here We Come" was a title one songwriter thought up, quick as a flash—bounded around Tin Pan alley today like a ball on a roulette wheel looking for a good number to land on.

One of the more talkative, if possible, piano-punishers broke into a cold sweat at what he frankly confessed was the first inspiration he had had since he did that smash, "Ducky-Wucky, Don't Youse Leave Me No Mo.'"

WOW! IT'S A WOW!

"It would be sure fire," he exclaimed, fumbling for a handkerchief and coming up with the laundry bill.

"A wow," said another, clamping his hoof down on the loud pedal and whaling the keyboard with all the delicacy of a circus roustabout driving a tent stake.

The more mature minds among the music makers, however, mulled the matter. They recognized the task would be no light one. Finding rhymes for "Moon" (croon, spoon, June) and "Love" (above, turtle dove, shove) is (tssch tssch!) a simple matter. A rhyme for "Reconstruction Finance Corporation" is not so easy.

Tin Pan alley is not a thoroughfare to curl up and roll away at the first breeze of an idea, some erudite persons to the contrary notwithstanding. It began casting about today for the kind of lyrics that would definitely launch America down the way of happiness.

Prosperity lyrics suddenly were thicker than Mississippi mud. A tune tinker who had been at work on a "wow" titled "With You, Dear Elaine, in Spain in the Rain," tore it up and began humming madly.

"I've got it!" he exulted. Then he sang:

"Do not say you can't afford it,
Spend your dough, old pal, don't hoard it."

"That's terrible," kibitzed a companion in chromatic crime. "Listen to this:

"Oh, it's just around the corner, bay-bee—
Prosperity, and I ain't meanin' may-bee."

MAINE TO ALABAMY.

"That's great!" shouted another juggernaut of jazz. "And then you could go on with:

"From Maine to Alabamy
Ev'ry uncle, aunt and mammy,
Ev'ry trade, ev'ry profession
Hollers, 'Down with the depression.'"

Thus it went. The idea was at work in Tin Pan Alley, biting this song writer and that. About all they needed were four more lines and then a smash finale to give the tenors a chance to show their gold teeth on a high note. These were quickly provided by a newcomer who, catching the idea, contributed:

"Oh, say, can you see
Anything that's bothering me?
I'm so happy I could sing
Whoops, my dear, or anything."

Whereupon all the others, struck by the same amazing inspiration for a last climactic line, shouted in unison:

LIE PASSED BY CONGRESSMAN

Washington, March 24 (AP)—Representative Disney today accused former Representative O'Connor of having told a "deliberate, dastardly lie" before the elections committee hearing a contest over the seat in the House for the 1st Oklahoma district.

Disney, a Democrat, was concluding his argument before the committee when O'Connor, Republican, interrupted, asking:

"That's the district in which you were a lecturer for the Ku Klux Klan, isn't it?"

"That's a deliberate, dastardly lie, and you know it to be a lie," Disney shouted. "I've never been a member of the Klan in any way, shape or form. I have always opposed it."

Income Receipts Far Below Normal

The 110,000 acres of the ranch lands already have virtually passed from control of Col. Zack Miller. The show went broke in Washington, D. C., last year.

HARVARD TIES IN SILVER

The ultimate whoops in cravats came out at Harvard today, with little silver hands clutching little silver arrows as the moving motif in the new Harvardian neckties.

They are Lowell House neckties solely, however, as Lowell House is the first of the house units to put into effect the decision of all the houses to have ties, scarves and blazers in individual house designs, as well as special insignia for participation in house athletics.

The new Lowell House cravat is black, with narrow light blue stripes running diagonally across at intervals of about two inches, and with—oh, my!—"here and there little silver hands grasping three arrows."

Manuel at Vatican

Vatican City, March 24 (AP)—Former King Manuel of Portugal today received communion from Pope Pius in the consistory hall with the pontifical court.

2 Princeton Men Die, 2 Hurt in Car Crash

Easton, Pa., March 24 (AP)—Two Princeton University sophomores are dead and two other students are critically injured today after the car in which they were homeward bound for the Easter holidays collided with another.

AH, $1 WATCHES ONLY $3!

A profitable street corner "watch racket" was reported to police today.

The operators stand on the fringe of those crowds gathered about curbstone demonstrators who draw men like bees to honey during the lunch-hour.

When the demonstrator has "pepped up" the crowd about his wares, the watch racketeer takes advantage of the situation by nudging the man next to him and offering a good-looking watch box containing a sure-enough watch for only $3, though the price tag reads $32.50.

The explanation of the low price is vague. The purchaser learns the real reason some time later. The watch actually sells in the stores for about $1.

Veteran Businessman Dies

Friday and Saturday . . . KANE'S Presents

And Oh! Boy! What a show we're going to put on! (This is the advertising department speaking.) You know, for fifty-one weeks in the year we've got to continually extol the virtues of the marvelous merchandise our buyers line up for you. But even buyers make mistakes—yes—they're human—and this is the time when we're going to show them that EVEN A BUYER can make a mistake. So if we get a little harsh with some of the treatment we're going to give this merchandise—it's just our way of having a good time—and you wouldn't deny us that—would you?

We buy merchandise in large quantities—and we try to move it fast. When a piece of goods doesn't move fast—then there's something wrong with it, we think. And so we've gone all over our stores and our warehouses with a fine-toothed comb—and we've gathered together all these "Follies of 1931." You know—it's a policy of this house that all goods MUST move within six months regardless of how cheap we've got to mark it to make it move. Well—we've marked all this stuff so low—that it isn't funny any more. Come in and enjoy yourself! We're putting on a show!

Just Look Over This ALL STAR CAST of Bargains! Don't Miss This Show!

Chinese Plan Coup to Save Captive Yankee Skipper

Copyright, 1932, by Associated Press

Shanghai, March 24 (AP)—The Chinese Government agreed today to go in for kidnaping as a desperate coup to save the life of a captive American.

This situation arose when the friends of Charles Baker, a Yangtze river boat captain, of Pasadena, Cal., found themselves at their wits end to pay the ransom demanded.

Lansing Hoyt, president of the Yangtze Rapids Steamship Co., tried paying a ransom, but the brigands got the money by a ruse, and kept their prisoner.

All governmental agents were helpless, since Baker was held in Kienli province, where Communists have complete control. Baker wrote that he was "living in hell."

Then orders went out to the Chinese navy patrol in the Yangtze to sieze hostages in bandit centers, thus turning the tables on brigands.

The last letter from the brigands was dated March 1, and said:

"You can't bluff me. If you want to see Baker back I must have $25,000."

Enclosed was a note in Baker's handwriting, which read:

"Don't use force. These people say that at the first sign of trouble, I lose my head. I am living in Hell and would give a million if I had it to bet out of it."

OCEAN PLANE LINE HINTED

Halifax, N. S., March 24—Announcement that the Pan-American Airways plan a Boston-Newfoundland air service this summer, with calls at Halifax, recalled to observers of aerial development here the visit last month of Bernt Balchen, transatlantic and Polar flyer.

Balchen arrived here by steamer Feb. 22, inspected the Halifax airport, which was used last year by the Pan-American Boston-St. John-Halifax service, and continued to Newfoundland.

With Pilot Arthur Sullivan of the Newfoundland Airways he flew from St. John's to Harbor Grace to view the facilities there, and St. John's despatches at the time intimated his interest in a transatlantic service on a commercial scale.

Duce Promises Italy Brighter Days in Birthday Address

Rome, March 24 (AP)—Premier Mussolini has made a solemn promise to Italy. Here it is, given on the 13th anniversary of the birth of his Fascist party:

"The north wind is blowing, but now it is spring. Five months ago I told you this would be a hard winter but we would live through it. From now on I will be thinking of next winter.

"I tell you—and you know I keep my promises—that next winter there will be more work and more help for all the people of Italy. The watchword will be 'durade' (carry on)."

The Duce gave his pledge as the Blackshirts crowded into the square in front of his office.

The Man Who Coughed at the 18th Hole . . . NO. 4 By Bateman

Luckies would have saved him!

No other cigarette can pass this test

O. K. AMERICA
TUNE IN ON LUCKY STRIKE—60 modern minutes with the world's finest dance orchestras and Walter Winchell, whose gossip of today becomes the news of tomorrow, every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evening over N. B. C. networks.

And the big test is value!

But, you might say, the price is the same. The size is the same. There are no more cigarettes in the package. True! But there is a big difference between LUCKY STRIKE and any other cigarette! And that big difference is the result of the extra, secret and exclusive "TOASTING" Process, which includes the use of modern Ultra Violet Rays.

When the "TOASTING" Process forces out—expels—certain harsh irritants it leaves room for the extra tobacco goodness of the Cream of many Crops. This extra goodness, this mellow-mildness alone is extra value for you. But when you remember that 20,679 physicians, after LUCKIES had been furnished them for tests, basing their opinions on their smoking experience, have stated that LUCKIES are less irritating to the throat—then you know why no other cigarette in the world gives you so much for your money.

INSANITY PLEA IS HINTED FOR POLICE KILLER

New Bedford, March 24—Roland G. Bosquet, 26, of Norton, who used to be a grocer's clerk before he started carrying a gun, shortened his fingernails with his teeth in court today while Dist. Atty. William C. Crossley described him as the slayer of a policeman.

The jury chosen yesterday to try Bosquet for the murder of Patrolman Edward Gobin in Attleboro may be asked to decide whether the young man is insane and should be imprisoned for life or whether he shall be electrocuted for first degree murder. Defense alienists were present when the trial opened.

Defense counsel has not indicated that there will be a repudiation of confession Bosquet allegedly made when captured after he shooting.

Bosquet was obviously nervous as Crossley outlined the government's case. His father and sister, Estelle, were present.

Crossley told the jury that before Bosquet made his confession he was asked:

"Why did you shoot Gobin in the back? You wouldn't hurt a fly."

The defendant, he said, remarked that he didn't like the looks of Patrolman Lawrence Johnson, the officer with Gobin at the time Bosquet was picked up as a suspicious person before the shooting.

FRIENDS FAIL TO AID DELAGE

Southbridge, March 24—A committee organized among town officials and friends of Leon J. Delage, 44, tax collector here for nine years, announced today it had failed to raise funds to cover an alleged shortage of $6017 in his accounts.

Delage is alleged to have confessed to the selectmen that he had taken the money from town accounts during four years. Following the alleged confession State auditors were called and the bonding company notified.

George E. Duhamel, the new tax collector, said today delinquent taxpayers would receive bills from the State House.

Delage, defeated for re-election on March 7, asked the selectmen that he be allowed to remain in the office until his accounts were straightened out. The request was refused.

Delage blamed his predicament on the fact that a bread business he was conducting was losing money, and said he had lifted sums from the town treasury in order to assist that business.

Lamont, in 10-Gal. Hat, Talks Cattle Deal With Soviets

Moscow, March 24 (AP)—Robert P. Lamont, Jr., reached Moscow today under a wide, black 10-gallon hat to talk over an offer of the Soviets to develop their cattle industry.

The son of the United States Secretary of Commerce came straight from his 15,000-acre ranch south of Denver. Stalin's government will make him a proposition which, if he accepts, will place upon his shoulders the work of furnishing enough meat to meet the needs of Russia's workers.

Tomorrow he will meet officials of the livestock division of the agricultural commissariat.

He said on his arrival here he had not yet been advised as to the proposal to be offered him, and emphasized that the matter of salary had not yet been broached.

He expects to remain in the Soviet Union about three weeks. At the end of that time he will return to Denver to think over Russia's offer.

SOURLAND HILLS PERFECT FOR HIDING

Hopewell, N. J., March 24—Looking down on the Lindbergh estate, the Sourland Hills guard the tragic secret of the fate of the lost Lindbergh baby. Brilliant minds have tried to unravel the chain of clues that led from the fresh earth beneath the nursery window into the wilderness. After three weeks they have admitted that they were baffled completely.

Meanwhile, Oscar Bush, Sourland trapper, to whom the hills are no mystery, continues to wrench from the country he knows, the details of what happened on the night of the crime.

By Oscar Bush

There's something dour and menacing like about the Sourland, even to those of us who are raised here and love it. They say it was called by that name because the soil was so sour nothing decent would grow in it.

But it's a perfect hiding place. I hear tell that before the Civil War the slaves from the South, when they escaped up North and was being hunted, used the bowl of these hills as their hideaway, being certain no one would ever chase them into the maze of woods and underbrush, uplands and lowlands.

I don't say the Lindbergh baby is being hid in the hills right now, but if it is, it can stay there for a long time without being rescued.

ASKED ONE QUESTION

Standing at the foot of that lane that leads down from the peak of Neshanic Hill into the main road, to Neshanic, looking at the tracks of where a car drove right up into the wilds over mud and rock on the night of the kidnaping, and back down again a few hours later—I kept asking myself one question:

"If the baby went up there in that car, did it go out again?"

And the more I think of it, the more it seems to me that the baby didn't go out again, but is still somewhere up in these hills.

It was left up there, maybe, with some mountain woman that agreed to take care of it, in a place the State police don't know about and probably never could find. That much done, the kidnapers' next move was to get under cover as far away from where the baby was as possible.

So, if anyone's going to conduct a search, the search has got to be two-fold, looking to find the baby, and looking to locate the kidnapers where they went.

ONLY A REAL SEARCH

The way to find the baby, to my mind, is to really search the hills—not just go prowling around, but really go into them, with the power the police has to turn every cabin upside down and look into it from garret to cellar and with someone that knows the hills to serve as a guide.

And I'd start the search, if I was starting it, not too far from the Neshanic Hill, where the auto tracks went up that night.

The kidnapers might be harder to locate except by following clues.

They might be living in some house up Neshanic way or they might be a long way off.

For with Neshanic as the hub of the wheel, they had a lot of points to choose from in their flight without much danger.

Once the baby was off their mind, they could drive peacefully to Flemington, to Easton, Pa., or to Sommerville. Or by still another road, they could strike off on a good highway and hit Jersey City. From there, if they liked, they could go across to Staten Island and hide away there until all the hubbub was over.

Then they could sneak back and dicker privately with the colonel for the ransom money, all in their own good time.

Now, there's women in the hills that might even take this child to board and not know who it was, never seeing any papers, nor any outside people up there. On the other hand, the woman that was taking care of it might be in on the reward.

And that leads me to something else, that seems clear to me, after going over all the ground. There wasn't one kidnaper, but several persons banded together to steal that baby.

And they wasn't all the same sort of people.

For somebody had to know the Lindbergh house, and somebody had to be pretty familiar with the hills, and somebody had to be able to take care of the baby and somebody had to be the business brains of the combination.

That's three or four people, anyhow. Who were they? Well, there might be certain ways of picking them out.

Tomorrow Oscar will tell more about the kidnapers' identity.

MARY SPURNS TINNEY'S PLEA TO WED

(Mary Nolan, who has told "all in the hope that someone might understand," today concludes her amazing story for Boston Evening American readers. Yesterday the featured screen artist told of her meeting with Arnold Rothstein and her departure for Europe.)

By MARY NOLAN

CHAPTER VII

Los Angeles, March 24—Europe was before me. There I planned to write new and happy chapters in my life. I dropped the name of Imogene Wilson and tried to drop the woman she had become. I took back the name which was my own—Mary Imogene Robertson—and stepped off the boat at Liverpool.

I had one dollar left. I tossed it to the stewardess and I was broke again. Strangers, who met me at the boat paid my fare on the boat train to London.

I don't know just why I went to London. Frank Tinney was there appearing in a revue. I really thought I didn't want to see him again, but I must have been mistaken. He came to see me and told me he couldn't work, he couldn't think away from me.

COULDN'T STAY CLEAN

So that he wouldn't throw up his job, I used to stand in the wings of the theater and watch him work. But finally I knew I had to live my own life away from him, so I accepted a motion picture contract from a studio in Munich, Germany.

The slate before me was clean. I pledged I would keep it so—but I failed! I made many pictures and my salary was $1500 a week.

At the peak of my career in Germany Frank Tinney arrived, told me he was divorced and begged me to marry him.

He begged and he cried and I promised to think it over.

"I'll stay here while you're thinking it over," he announced.

He did—for 10 days. And during that time I nearly lost the friendship of a German baron and an Italian count with whom I had been going. I knew I couldn't go on with Frank.

I told him one day:

"Frank, you're leaving on the 4 o'clock train today for England. We are through."

LAST OF TINNEY

Frank knew I meant it—and he boarded the 4 o'clock train and went out of my life. I was at the station to see him leave, but he didn't know it. I'm sure if he had seen me and spoken to me I would have gone away with him—I probably would be Mrs. Frank Tinney today instead of Mrs. Wallace Macrery.

I never saw Frank again until that day not long ago when I watched him, broken and paralyzed, in a park on the outskirts of Philadelphia refereeing a marble game for a group of little boys.

A representative of an American film company called me in Germany and said he was authorized to offer me—"Miss Robertson"—a film contract to make pictures in Hollywood.

'"But I can't go back to America—I am Imogene Wilson," I told him.

AND THUS, THE END

The film agent wired this startling news to his employer in Hollywood. I was engaged, nevertheless, but came to America under the name of Mary Nolan.

I have been here in Hollywood almost every day since. There is no need here of going into my life in the film colony. It is an open

SHOTS FIRED IN RUM CAPTURED; THREE ESCAPE

Bath, Me., March 24 (INS)—Three men escaped in a hail of pistol shots today when a state trooper and a sheriff halted and seized a four-ton motor truck and liquors valued at $15,000.

A small auto that had followed the truck returned to the scene with a second car in an attempt to retake the truck by running down State Trooper John P. Crosby and Sheriff Albert Henderson as they stood guard.

The seized truck was registered in Augusta, Me., to the Elite Trucking Co. of Boston.

Approximately 200 sacks of liquor bearing Vancouver, B. C., seals, was captured.

Film Stars Pretty Up for Easter Parade

By WALLACE X. RAWLES

International News Service Correspondent

Hollywood, March 24 (INS)—Film stars are preparing for the annual Easter parade on the boulelvard Sunday when all the newest fashions will be displayed.

Prayers were offered that Hollywood's azure blue skies would remain rainless, at least while the stars trek to and from church—and later to the beach, the desert and the mountains.

Black crepe and silver cloth is Tallulah Bankhead's selection for an afternon suit to be worn for the Easter day parade. The jacket is trimmed with silver fox fur, while the bodice is created in printed silver cloth.

The season's favorite color, bright blue, will represent Miriam Hopkins' costume. A one-piece frock of this shade, in wool crepe, with white collar and a bright girdle, is completed with a tiny beret-effect hat of the same material used in the dress.

BLUE PREDOMINATES

Gray with touches of bright blue will be the color chart of Sylvia Sydney's garb, made along mannish lines. A scarf of diagonal red, white and blue stripes is worn stock-fashion, while a blue sailor hat introduces the newest millinery whim.

Billie Dove will wear a creation of robin's egg blue satin made on svelte form-fitting lines with long penguin sleeves lined in black crepe-backed satin.

Janet Gaynor will wear an all-white ensemble with a one-piece dress of lace-mesh and a hip length jacket of the same material.

Two of Hollywood's newest brides, Constance and Joan Bennett, have stunning Easter costumes. Constance will wear a simple tailored suit of black satin in a rough weave, featuring the high Empire waistline and an abbreviated packet with circular trimming of silver fox, and a black chip straw hat.

OLYMPIC GAMES TOUCH.

Joan has chosen a navy blue crepe Elizabeth frock with form-fitting bodice and puff sleeves finished at the elbows with mink fur cuffs.

Ann Harding has chosen a black and white ensemble which employs a fashionable scarf tied loosely at the throat.

The Olympic games inspired the costume of Sally Eilers, who will wear a blue dress, shoes and hat, a red Eton jacket with white tie.

Marlene Dietrich has a new tailored suit of white flannel.

Joan March has a trim little white-lapeled and double breasted suit of navy blue with fetching small brimmed straw hat of similar shade.

Adrienne Ames will wear a sports costume.

Plannin gto spend Easter Sunday at the beach, Carole Lombard has selected an elaborate pajama outfit. Trousers of white crepe are emblazoned with hand painted roses in yellow and brown tones. A large square of crepe, lined with material painted in the rose motif is draped cleverly about the shoulders creating a top robe for the pajamas.

MARINES OUT OF NICARAGUA SOON

Washington, March 24 (INS)—Secretary of State Stimson today was believed to have put a stopper in the jug of home brew politics in Nicaragua, which, he said, might upset the poltical tranquility there.

Hhe served notice that the marines would be withdrawn from Nicaragua at the end of the year, regardless of the outcome of the presidential elections there in November.

Stimson said "no" in 700 words in reply to a proposal by President Jose Moncada for constitutional reform in Nicaragua, which Stimson anticipated might require an extension of the marines' stay.

The proposal was that the forthcoming elections be changed so that only a Preident and members of a constituent assembly be elected.

Theories of Readers

Al Capone or an "inside job" predominate in the theories submitted in the Lindbergh case by readers of the Boston Evening American. Following are some more excerpts from letters chosen at random:

IN CHICAGO

"I believe the baby is hidden in Chicago somewhere. I still have hope for his safety. Let Capone out to search with the promise of his freedom if he succeeds. It would be well worth the price"—Mrs. J. Reedshaw, Pineapple ct., Beverly Farms.

HANDED OUT

"I think there were three—one on the inside that passed the baby to a man on the ladder, and one bracing the ladder. No man living could have taken the baby and crawled over a chest and out the window to a flimsy ladder with the baby. I have worked at carpentering for 65 years and certainly know something about crawling out of a window to get on a ladder, and it is no easy matter with only a piece of board"—J. R. Crespin, 18 Fuller st., Magnolia.

NEED TROOPS

"It is time President Hoover called out the vast army of men at his command. Turn the soldiers loose to search the mountains. Give the 'pig woman' the third degree. Give the servants a most bitter third degree."—Mrs. S. D. Rollins, Montpelier, Vt.

JEALOUSY OR GRUDGE

"Someone who knows the colonel's habits intimately, I believe, is the instigator of the kidnaping, although not the actual kidnaper. It does not seem to me that ransom was the motive, but rather jealousy or a grudge."—L. M. D., West Quincy.

POTENTIALLY GREAT

"A German prisoner told me during the war that a baby was kidnaped from Spain. His father was a great swordsman and the kidnapers thought if they got the baby and brought him up he would be a great man like his father, and he was; he grew up to be a cavalry commander."—Harold V. Adams, West Medway.

SPITE

"I think the kidnaper had help from the inside and everyone I have talked with here has said the same from the start. That baby was sick. Why wasn't the nurse in the room with it? And where was the dog? I think the baby was taken for spite and money."—Mrs. C. H. P., Alcorn st., Pittsfield.

A CARPENTER

"I am a carpenter and I believe the kidnaper was one. The ladder sinking in the ground only about an inch shows the man was not very heavy. Three ladder marks in the ground looks as if he was clever handling a ladder. He knew what weight ladder would hold and he had the moves of the family figured from working there at some time. I think he is holding the baby for money yet in fear to demand it, and that he is in or near Hopewell."—Patrick J. Foley, 32 Arlington st., Woburn.

IN A BAG

"That ladder doesn't fool me. It wouldn't have borne any load. Perhaps the baby was lowered from the window in a bag."—Hotel Bancroft, Worcester.

CHILDLESS WOMAN

"I think the kidnaping was the work of some childless woman, that she did not know the baby was sick. The underworld had nothing to do with this case."—Mother of Five, Boston.

AFRAID TO COLLECT

"These were no amateurs but outlaws with iron nerve. They took the baby for ransom and are afraid to collect."—Mrs. F. V., Auburndale.

Ransom Note Theory; 'Gang Crime' Idea Discounted

$50,000 RANSOM
WAS IT A GANG JOB?

If Ransom is Motive—Why the Silence?

By WIN BROOKS

Chapter VII

Is any par[illegible] m[illegible]tive indicated by the theoretical conclusions we have reached in discussion of the clues and circumstances of the Lindbergh kidnaping?

W[illegible] [illegible].

R[illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] note which some sources say was left in the nursery b[illegible] the kidnaper and which we have hitherto disregarded in discussion because police have denied its existence.

The first stories out of Hopewell said that [illegible] note was found in the nursery. The early follow up stories said the note mentioned $50,000. Two or three days later it was announced to press representatives in the [illegible] that the [illegible] demanded was $50,000 [illegible] denomination were specified.

Then from [illegible] came a contradiction of this announcement and from police at the home came a denial of the existence of any note at all. Since then there has been a note or there has been no note according to who was sending out the story, and those who have maintained from the beginning that a note existed have given it certain identifying characteristics.

Why Note Secrecy?

Did Lindbergh Fear to Reveal Its Contents?

Chief among these was use of the German word "gut" (for good), a series of seemingly meaningless perforations and a row of indecipherable symbols or hieroglyphics.

For the purpose of discussion we will grant existence of the note and, giving police the benefit of the doubt, say that their investigation has been handicapped just so much by not having access to its contents.

That being the case we must ascribe to Colonel Lindbergh a sufficient reason for so handicapping the police. This reason we may say is his fear that harm would come to his child if the contents of the note were revealed.

This fear may be merely psychic or it may be premised on a threat contained in the note. In either case it would be a sufficiently strong reason for secrecy.

Another reason might be that the note contained certain definite instructions for contacting the kidnapers.

Now, if this note [illegible] $50,000 does that figure suggest anything?

I think that one of the first thoughts that occurred to persons reading mention of $50,000 ransom was that this was an exceedingly low price in comparison with the danger and risks undertaken by the kidnaper.

There are two offshoots to this thought. The first is that the parents, particularly the mother, are well able to meet a much greater demand and that the securing of a much larger sum would entail no greater danger to the abductor. The second is that $50,000 would not go far if split among members of a gang.

Now, if the note contained the German word "gut," does its use suggest anything?

Used in conjunction with good English, it suggests an attempt to throw investigation off the right track. "Good" and no "good" are among the first English expressions learned by immigrants to our shores. Would a German substitute the German word, in conjunction with otherwise good English, and thus deliberately arouse a suspicion that might prove his undoing? It does not seem logical.

What Is Your Theory?

What is your theory of the Lindbergh kidnaping puzzle which has aroused the entire world, and which has baffled the collected police talent of the entire nation? Your theory is as good as anyone's at this time. Send your idea to the Lindbergh Case Editor, the Boston Evening American.

Then if "gut" was used it appears more likely that its user was not a German. Many persons who know that "gut" means "good" in German, know no other German words.

If there were perforations or strange symbols in this note, do they suggest anything?

A first thought is that they might be for the purpose of identifying subsequent communications. Yet one symbol alone would have served that purpose. And there have been no "subsequent communications."

A second thought is that they might have some particular meaning, suppose, for instance, hieroglyphics common to the Aztec tribes, the ruins of whose hidden villages Lindbergh visited and photographed.

Yet if symbols existed in a note left behind they undoubtedly have been viewed by experts in hieroglyphics and found without significance.

Revenge Crime?

Youngest Baby Ever Held for Three Weeks

The other thought that occurs in connection with them is that they were born in a demented mind. Such markings are common to dementia, psychologists tell us, and they have meaning only to the particular brain conceiving them.

So here again we have a suggestion of insanity.

We cannot dispense with the note without mentioning the possibility that its only purpose, if it does exist, is to confound investigators and disguise the true motive.

Let us proceed with discussion of the ransom motive without further regard to the note.

Few babies as young as Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., ever have been kidnaped for ransom. The care necessary to preserve a baby in good health during negotiations for the money is one reason. If revenge is the motive the necessity or desire to give the child proper care is either entirely absent or lightly held.

In all the long list of infamous child kidnapings, no victim as young as Baby Lindbergh ever has been held for as long as three weeks and safely restored to its parents.

On the other hand, [illegible] in history ever [illegible] [illegible] virtual police [illegible] has been [illegible] and Mrs. Lindbergh [illegible] apparent [illegible]ties.

Not a Gang Crime!

Every Logical Theory Discards Underworld

The extreme activity and the unprecedented public vigilance in this case may be the reason why there has been no word from the kidnaper if ransom were the motive.

Yet Colonel Lindbergh has openly expressed his willingness to deal privately and has named emissaries with whom the kidnaper could have contacted without danger. That the criminal has not accepted the opportunity must at least suggest the thought that ransom was not the motive.

One person or any number of persons may enter into a kidnaping plot for ransom. They may be professional crooks or amateurs. We reached a tentative conclusion, discussing clues, that this was an amateur job.

For [illegible] and gangsters have taken [illegible] part of the blame and [illegible] kidnaping. But has it [illegible] gangster job?

Do the ladder and chisel indicate gangsters? Does the invasion of the home? Does the early hour of the crime? Would not gangland have waited, during one of the many times the parents of the baby were not present, when they had only servants with whom to contend if plans went awry?

[illegible] motive for the [illegible] would be [illegible] [illegible] known in a note left behind for [illegible] chance of tracing such communication.

Gangsters, [illegible] the accepted [illegible] of the word, have never k[illegible] so far as I can learn.

Not Like Gangsters

A Baby No Respecter of a Criminal's Gun

And gangsters have had three weeks to contact Spitale or Bitz or Rosner (their own kind) and they have not done so.

It may be, of course, that this is a gang job and that the clues indicating otherwise are false clues.

In that case there could be two explanations for failure of the gang to establish contact.

One would be the accidental death of the child.

The other would be a policy of suspense in order that when a huge demand is made it will be met without question, because the Lindberghs will have seen the futility of police activities.

[illegible]

Capone Theory

He's Too Wise to Dig Pit to Fall Into

[illegible] imprisonment [illegible] has deterred the [illegible]

Calculating gangsters would have foreseen the great search and the widespread interest resulting from this case. If, having weighed its hazards, they decided to embrace them, they moved contrary to [illegible].

For a baby is not a logical victim for a gangster. He will cry just as much with a pistol against his head. His feeding and care involve phases with which gangsters and even gangsters' [illegible] are not familiar.

[illegible] be the [illegible]

If Capone were released from jail now [illegible] recovered the baby there are not two persons in the nation who would believe other[illegible]

[illegible]

Capone, plotting the [illegible] could be expected to foresee the pit into which he would step if he himself recovered the babe. And he could be expected to foresee the value of silence on his own part if his agents were to return the baby as a chance for his freedom.

Well, that is the way that hundreds of society folk are going to do it this summer. No housekeeping cares, no servant problem, no entertaining [illegible] and Danny's week-end crowds, no [illegible] family guests for a fortnight, no planning of summer clothes [illegible] a few suits of silk lingerie which may be rinsed out in the private bath, a couple of fresh blouses for the travel suit, a warm coat, a few evening gowns left over from the quiet winter season which no one on board has seen and can be hidden under a spray of gardenias [illegible] this is all one needs and the summer belongs to YOU.

We know of several entire families, even to the dog, who have taken passage on liners to sail the seven seas "because, oh dear, we will know exactly what the summer is going to [illegible] us and it will be wonderful for the children."

• • •

Three North Cape Cruises This Summer

WE HEAR THAT THERE WILL BE THREE NORTH CAPE cruises this summer instead of one as formerly. This interesting trip touches the most romantic places, Norway and Russia [illegible] one of OUR ambitions has been to drive in one of those Russian boat sleighs, wrapped up in [illegible] furs, on a clear moonlight night to the tinkle of silver sleigh-bells . . . Gay Berlin, and light-hearted Paris.

• • •

And speaking of Paris, we learn that Mrs. Henricks Whitman is over in that merry city but will not obtain her divorce in the French courts. Good old Massachusetts will be the scene, if there is a scene—of the Whitmans' parting of the ways, and if you think it is easy to get "put asunder" in this state, try it.

• • •

Memories

WE WELL REMEMBER ONE very snowy winter [illegible] was [illegible] the only place where we have ever felt AT HOME, by the way [illegible] when the thermometer registered several degrees below zero and Henricks Whitman [illegible] and an armful of Christmas packages as well.

• • •

THE TRIP DOWN FROM Boston on the 3.30 in a howling blizzard which daily took about 50 minutes was prolonged by snow drifts until 8.30 or later [illegible] was dark when we alighted from the train [illegible] with Christmas [illegible]

• • •

A Rickety Old Pung

DRAGGING OUR LAGGING feet over to the old livery stable we [illegible] and argued for 10 minutes to have a horse hitched onto a rickety old pung to take us to Sunset Hill, our little grey home in the West, warm supper and rest. After much scratching of head and dubious meditation the [illegible] livery man started to [illegible]

• • •

JUST THEN IN BREEZED A tall [illegible] after [illegible] we were [illegible] out [illegible] for this very evening. We [illegible] spare you the scene that followed but the old [illegible] ly pulled out of her warm barn with little US and all her packages sitting on the [illegible] and let us not forget to mention that Grandmother was along [illegible] will never forget that [illegible]

• • •

Thoughts of Home

IF YOU CAN IMAGINE [illegible] TING [illegible] men [illegible] daping [illegible] a [illegible] drifts [illegible] a howling wind [illegible] through [illegible] you know what we SUFFERED [illegible]

• • •

BUT WE WERE GETTING HOME [illegible] alive [illegible] there was [illegible] of it and [illegible]

WHEN WE ARRIVED [illegible] within two [illegible] of [illegible] to the house the horse [illegible] along, but we [illegible] still [illegible] he had broken his harness and kept going [illegible] and a little [illegible] freezing to death.

A Real Hero

NEVER WILL WE FORGET Mr. Whitman's strength and bravery on that occasion [illegible] ing out loud at all women in particular and not sparing our feelings he literally carried [illegible] then the rest of the way [illegible] his arm when we [illegible] as though the next step would be our last. It was an unforgettable experience, our face [illegible] ered when we got [illegible] quite frozen and poor mother [illegible] in bed a week to recuperate.

• • •

AND TO MAKE MR. W. a real hero we must [illegible] that he went back to the sleigh, collected our parcels and brought them back to [illegible] after he [illegible] livery man [illegible] the horse out of the snow and hitched [illegible] to the pung. But that w[illegible] HOLE [illegible]

IT WAS A YEAR LATER [illegible] into the [illegible] before we discovered who our benefactor was and far too late to go [illegible] and express our thanks for we have never forgotten this [illegible] gentleman.

AROUND THE CORNER

(Reprinted by Request)

Around the corner I have a friend
In this great city that knows no end;
Yet days go by, and weeks rush on,
And before I know it a year is gone
And I never see my old friend's face,
For Life is a swift and terrible race.
He knows I like him just as well
As in the days when I rang his bell
And he rang mine. We were younger then
And now we are busy, tired men,
Tired with playing a foolish game,
Tired with trying to make a name.
"Tomorrow," I say, "I will call on Jim,
Just to show that I'm thinking of him."
But tomorrow comes—and tomorrow goes,
And the distance between us grows and grows.

Around the corner! yet miles away . . .
"Here's a telegram, sir . . ."
"Jim died today."
And that's what we get, and deserve in the end
Around the corner a vanished friend.

There is a young group of American citizens coming up over the hill who have known their country only as it exists under the Eighteenth Amendment. They have no recollection of the corner saloon but they are well acquainted with the speakeasy and with drinking in the home. When they go abroad the first part of the ship they visit is the bar in the smoking room. They have never gone on the water wagon for they drink now with a sort of desperation, thinking it smart to do so, "chic," as one young girl put it the other day. They are ignorant of wine lists and the various vintages which the old-time drinker knew so well. They absorb only cocktails and whiskey, gin fizzes and strong cordials. Of Rhine wine, moselle and claret and sherry they know scarcely anything at all.

The cocktail party has replaced the old tea party, and it is a sad commentary on our time that the precious hours before dinner in any large city are now spent in good fellowship along the glitter [illegible] of our fashionable streets. It is no uncommon thing for these young people to imbibe too freely before 7 o'clock. They even drink at lunch time in stuffy brown-stone fronts where a basement bell must be rung to gain admittance and the guests must be known to the proprietors.

Before Prohibition came upon us it was considered highly improper for any young man or woman to take even a glass of beer with the noonday meal. Such a procedure was frowned upon. Now it is not only tolerated but rather expected.

I can remember the days when one took one's best girl to the theater and gladly sat in the gallery among the gods with a simple meal before the performance without drinking of any kind. After the play, we went to a soda fountain if we could afford it, and our total expenditure there was twenty cents for ice cream soda. Then we either walked home, or took a trolley, and were fit for the next day's work. Nowadays, if a boy invited a girl to such an evening's entertainment he would be looked upon as a stupid prig, if not a sissy.

A youth said to me the other day: "Look here! This Prohibition, as my generation understands it, was put over because it was felt that the weaklings should be saved from themselves. Everyone was to stop drinking so that a minority might be rescued. But sometimes I feel that that minority has grown into a majority, for I don't know a single young man or girl for that matter, who doesn't take too much. And I can't see an end to it.

"Now why shouldn't we of the younger generation band together in an appeal to our paternal Government and beg salvation from this state of things? We, if you wish to call us that, are now the weaklings, as Uncle Henry used to be, and the [illegible] habit of drinking has got hold of us. I don't like to drink too much, but it has become almost compulsory to do so. I admit that the fault may be mine, and I wish I could see a way out, but the temptation is ever present. If life is a case of the survival of the fittest, heaven help the next generation! I'd like to get hold of myself, but I freely admit that now it seems impossible of accomplishment. Can't the Government help us the new unfit to some sane behavior in this matter of booze? Wherever I go the hip-flask is in evidence, and even if one wishes to be decent one can't.

"If this sounds weak, I admit it. My father never touched a drop until he was twenty-one, but I began drinking at fourteen, and have been [illegible] ever since. How I got through college I don't know. When I went abroad I never saw anyone drunk, except a few people in the slums of London. Here everyone gets tight. I wish I knew what to do about this problem."

Here is something to ponder over, in this curious age in which we live. My sympathies are all with the youth, who spoke soberly, if from a full heart.

Father Coughlin, Shepherd of the Air »»» His Works and Messages

War Must Be Outlawed in the Hearts of men, Not on Paper

By ALAN FRAZER

(Copyright, 1932, [illegible] American)

He is a disciple of Christ. But he has studied human hearts.

He believes in peace.

But he believes in preparedness, too, this study orator of Royal Oak.

And while preaching Christ's Gospel he warns his vast flock in the prophecy that fell from the lips of the Prince of Peace:

"And ye shall hear of wars and rumors of wars; see that ye be not troubled.

"For all these things must come to pass, but the end is not yet.

"For nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom."

FOE OF PACIFISTS

The stalwart Americanism of Fr. Coughlin was never more vigorously set forth by the shepherd of the air than when he aimed his verbal fire at blind pacifism.

Than when he appealed to a nation to stand now and forever by the stalwart principles that Washington and Lincoln asserted in both peace and war.

He has studied human hearts and seen planted there the seeds of war like the seeds of crime.

"Cure them first!" he cautions. "Cure them first, before attempting to scrap our armaments."

He asks if you would abolish protection against bandits. If you would stop resistance against fires. If you would count on a conference with thieves to end stealing.

DEFENDS PRINCIPLES

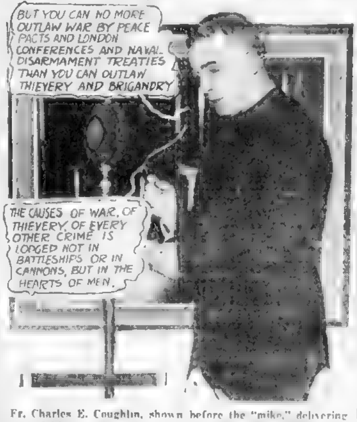
If you could logically expect a disarmament parley or peace pact to end all wars.

The American War for Independence and the Civil War—were these criminal or just wars, he wants the pacifists to say.

This is the forceful manner in which he argues for a rebirth of American principles of the past that they may be carried forward into the future beneath the colors of the tattered flag of human rights.



BUT YOU CAN NO MORE OUTLAW WAR BY PEACE PACTS AND LONDON CONFERENCES AND NAVAL DISARMAMENT TREATIES THAN YOU CAN OUTLAW THIEVERY AND BRIGANDRY
THE CAUSES OF WAR, OF THIEVERY, OF EVERY OTHER CRIME IS LODGED NOT IN BATTLESHIPS OR IN CANNONS, BUT IN THE HEARTS OF MEN.

Fr. Charles E. Coughlin, shown before the "mike," delivering one of his sermons from the Shrine of the Little Flower at Royal Oak, Mich.

"The most far-reaching events in the history of civilization are those which have been enacted in its darkest hours.

"The story of any Thabor, with its resplendence and grandeur is only secondary in importance to the memory of a Calvary with its darkness, its desolation, its suffering.

"The golden sands of the Flavian amphitheater, which were crimsoned with the blood of 500,000 martyrs, and the waters of the tawny Tiber, which grew red with the carnage of Christians, gave more impetus to the growth of Christianity than did the building of a St. Peter's at Rome or a St. Paul's at London.

PROGRESS IN SUFFERING

"The muse of history has been forced to affirm that the dark hours of persecution and martyrdom have been the seedlings of liberty and of faith. They were hours when the basic principles of life were analyzed in the test tube of suffering."

He [illegible] Revolutionary War and the Civil War when Washington [illegible] led the [illegible]

He continues:

"It is a system of government which was cradled in the Bethlehem of the struggle for independence and preserved intact for us on the cross of the Civil War.

"It is a system of government which within the short space of 150 years converted a howling wilderness into a center of world culture and made 100 million immigrants the richest people of the earth.

CONGRESS DEFENDED

"There is a tendency very prevalent among Americans to forsake the principles which characterized Washington and his sterling successors.

"While we have been busying ourselves in conquering the air with dirigibles or in mocking the depths of the sea with submarines, harnessing the waters of Niagara, building production factories, annihilating space and time with our inventions in radio and transportation, we have permitted our minds to become engrossed with the fallacy that the principles of yesterday must have been inefficient or false.

"Thus, there is a powerful propaganda being circulated that our Congress and Senate are detrimental to business. There are voices being raised which whisper to us that as long as these constitutional bodies remain in session then depression shall remain to accompany them.

"The insinuation is that our legislative bodies are the cause of our distress, when, as a matter of fact they have acted nobly in defending the people from powerful amalgamations.

Real Americans who have not lost confidence in their Congress have nothing to fear from either ordinary or extraordinary sessions, especially in these days when the uncrowned king of the financiers boldly advocates a vacation of all parliaments.

PLOT AGAINST PEOPLE

"The advocacy of this policy is tinged with Kaiserism with autocracy. It is far distant from the concept of government originated by Washington and his contemporaries. It is at world's ends with the democracy predicated by Lincoln.

"It is a gesture to prevent the duly elected representatives of the people from an endeavor to suppress the forces which are at the root and trouble of the depression.

"Thus, on every side one hears the thoughtless cant of those who subscribe to every change in the name of progress.

The word change seems to have become identified with the word progress. Old views are discarded at every opportunity simply because they are old, despite what Lincoln said:

'I shall adopt new views only as fast as they appear to be true views.'

The wisdom of our ancestors is ceasing to be directive of our national activities. In vain has the Great Emancipator elsewhere said 'A people will not look forward to prosperity who never will look backward to their ancestors.'

REVOLUTION CRIMINAL

"Thus, what new coined logic do our modern communistic pacifists employ when they ask us to discard our army and navy?

"If a just war is such a criminal thing then the rights and liberties which Washington established were born in the criminal act known as the American War of Independence, and the unity of our nation was preserved by the bloody brutality which history records as the American Civil War.

"May I pause to assure you that I am just as loath to enter upon a policy of war as is the most timid pacifist.

"But you can no more outlaw war by Peace Pacts and London Conferences and Naval Disarmament Treaties than you can outlaw thievery and brigandry.

Imagine our mayor of Detroit meeting in solemn session with his council and grotesquely banishing bootlegging and robbery. Imagine the assininity of his dispensing with all policemen!'

CURE CAUSES OF WAR

"The causes of war, of thievery, of every other crime are lodged not in battleships or in cannons, but in the hearts of men.

Cure them first, before attempting to scrap our armaments.

No one is more opposed to having his house burned down than am I. Nevertheless, I carry insurance against such a contingency.

No one is more anxious to follow the Prince of Peace than am I. But I am not unmindful of the prophetic Christ's warning us that there shall be wars and rumors of wars until the end of time.

These things I speak counter to pacifism not only in memory of him who purchased liberty at the price of war or him who preserved our nation's unity at the cost of conflict but also in view of the fact that Joseph Stalin has pledged himself to scatter the seeds of pacifism in our country and elsewhere, while he himself is the commander in chief of the world's largest conscripted army—an army that is fed upon the philosophy of destroying the 'capitalistic nations' before these latter are compelled to destroy the Soviets.

LAUDS WASHINGTON

Both Washington and Lincoln were men of action who loved the manly paths of justice rather than cringe behind an artificial [illegible] of peace and prosperity at any price.

They believed that there are times when words seem empty and only action seems great—vigorous, courageous and effective action which never feared to take its stand beneath the colors of the tattered flag of human rights, men of heroic action who spurned the siren voice of [illegible] and class pressure when the meanest of their fellow citizens besought them for aid and comfort.

(The story of the works and messages of Fr. Coughlin of Royal Oak, Mich., about whom millions are talking, will be continued in tomorrow's Boston Evening American. A story you cannot afford to miss.)

Meanest trick we've heard of lately was played by one of Hub town's so-called Big Shot Insurancers who went to the manager of a local Chinese restaurant with "Is that guy going to be in your show here next week? # THE VOICE OF BROADWAY

—By LOUIS SOBOL—

Absurd Room!

These cheap, coarse curtains where
No sun comes thru
To light the carpet's dirty,
Spotted face—
A battered table and
A broken chair—
A few cracked dishes and
An empty vase—

A mirror hanging cock-eyed
On the wall—
A gas stove and
A few scarred cooking tins—
A dingy cover on
A low, wide bed
That might have held a Million sordid sins—

A sickly daylight falters thru
The window panes,
And only deepens the Already gloom—
The sun will never penetrate
These closes—
There is no place for laughter
In this room.

—Wilma Ethel Crittenden.

O Hum!

It was in the midst of a strenuous ceylon-quaffing tilt at Sutton Place the other day—or was it last year?—that the monocled guest from dear ol' London, a captain of the King's Guards, disrupted the saint sipping of the swagger Social Registerites by recounting his exploits as a big game hunter, sportsman and college athlete. Modestly, he admitted that he had fought and won for dear old Oxford and through his white-toothed smile finally confessed that he had been the university's greatest oarsman as a member of the 1904 Oxford crew.

Interrupting the gushing comments of the admiring debs, one well known lad about town inquired "Just what position did you seat, cap'n?"

"Pon my word, I've almost forgotten," returned the great athlete. "Lemme see, now, lemme see. Haw, haw, to be sure I'm baily well certain it was No. 5."

"What a coincidence!" murmured the lad about T. "You must have sat in the lap. No. 5 was my position in the Oxford shell that year."

The Retort Proper!

I rather like these British yarns—they never seem to make much sense. One of my favorites centers about the occasion when Peggy Hopkins Joyce was waltzing with a distinguished Englishman at a Parisian ball. He was handsome; he was stately, he was courtly, he was attentive. A true English gentleman—and Peggy was thrilled. One thing alone puzzled her. Though he was an excellent dancer, her partner insisted upon pirouetting in one direction. Around and around he whirled her, never reversing. Finally, when the room swam about her head and the floor swerved toward her chin, Peggy begged him to stop.

"Why," she pleaded, in dazed tones, "do you keep on turning in one direction? Why don't you reverse occasionally?"

"My word," drawled the Britisher, with the proper tilt of the voice, "how absurd to undo everything one's gone to such pains to do!"

More of Them!

Add these to your Hollywood producer's dictionary (from Richard E. Gilbert): Camel: An animal that can go eight days without water. [illegible]: Lonaos, McMillin, etc. Juxtaposition: Quite a job. [illegible]: Well, gefulte fish, for instance. (From Mack Kracke)—Diverse: The kind of swimmers who jump into water. Brig: Irish confetti. Indelible: Not so dainty. (From Charles Weisse)—Voluble: Expensive. Meals: You should eat three a day. Irate: Ear trouble. Harrangue: A warry, popular feesh. Languish: Speech. Clamps: I like em better than oysters. Pitch: A swell fruit. Bounce: Cakes—the Red Cross kind, especially.

Irishman's Luck!

My attention is called by Tom Poulet to the fact that in the recent Canadian Army and Navy sweep on the Grand National, four Canucks drew a dead horse—West Indies, an entry which dropped dead during a jumping race in England six weeks ago. One of the four, an Irishman tore up his ticket—it was on St. Patrick's Day—and vowed he'd never believe in the saint again. It was foolish of him, for the ticket was worth $134 a consolation prize to all those who drew entered horses, dead or alive.

How True!

The trouble is, observes Lou Ashendorf sagely, that the girl who persists in being the life of the party rarely becomes the wife of the party!

Commercial Note!

Of interest to the ladies and to the gents, too—is the information reaching this desk that William Bloom, well known creator of sports clothes, is bringing out a new garment in which the skirt is closed with a zipper. In cases of extreme cold or rain, the skirt can be lifted to cover the blouse. Even a censor's wife can wear one, however, for knickers are attached underneath the skirt.

Definitions!

A few definitions submitted by Bister Rothman—Love: A fire against which there is no insurance or the delusion that one woman differs from another. Platonic love: The interval between events. Puppy love: The beginning of a dog's life. Devotion: Love in cold storage. Marriage: A relationship between two people recognized by the police. Marriage contract—a confession of mutual doubt. Second marriage: The triumph of hope over experience. Heart balm: Mad money. Wife: A casualty acquaintance. Baby: The dividend. Widow: A burnt offering. Kiss: A conjunction—also, nothing divided by two. Bachelor: A man who has been lucky in love.

Ts-Ts!

The height of anything, according to Frank Mitchell of Mitchell and Durant, is the Broadway columnist who approaches the fellow in the information booth at the Grand Central and asks, "What do you know?"

Maybe I'm Wrong (About Hollywood)

Hollywood, March 4—You can blame Jimmy Durante for this one. He says that times are so tough at the zoo the laughing hyenas are only smiling.

Hollywood Flashes

Any little extra girl will tell you that there's a difference between having a good time and a nice time.

According to Martin Gang, Hollywood attorney, the woman who loved and lost didn't have the right lawyer.

Lucille Gleason is the smartest housewife in town. She sprays the flies with phosphorus so that she can swat them in the dark.

According to Lowell Sherman, two can lie cheaper than one, unless one of them has to pay alimony.

ERNEST LUBITSCH TO START WORK AS PARAMOUNT DIRECTOR

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service, Inc.

Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service.

Los Angeles, March 24—Yes, we are all very much interested in what picture Ernest Lubitsch will make first for Paramount on his new contract; the piece of paper that was signed after many hectic battles. B. P. Schulberg has been in telephone conversation with Herr Lubitsch who announces he has bought his ticket and is ready to leave New York for Hollywood today.

Louella O. Parsons

Now about the first Lubitsch opus. The story is yet to be selected but it will star Miriam Hopkins. It was Mr. Lubitsch who first brought her to the attention of the world in "Smiling Lieutenant." Up to that time she had been merely a pretty little New York actress. After that companies with good feminine roles tried to borrow her, but she's remaining at Paramount.

Chatter in Hollywood

A little bird flitting around Europe says that our own Sally O'Neil has been seen constantly with Arthur Loew. That may or may not be true but Sally is in Europe at the moment and from all we can hear, having one grand time. Paul Lukas can appreciate the song about the man who walked right in and turned around and walked right back again. He is just back from a tour of some of the Paramount theaters in the Eastern cities and he did so well Paramount is sending him right back to open in Boston. Lady Inverclyde sails today to open in a show in London and while abroad she will try to get her matrimonial affairs settled so she and Lothar Mendes can say the "I do" business. Jackie Cooper is really going to open in vaudeville. He and his mother leave for the East April 1 for eight weeks. Maurice Chevalier has rented a house in Beverly Hills until June so that looks as if he will be with us at least that long.

Comics the Style

Universal is setting great store by the idea of Slim Summerville and Zasu Pitts in a comedy. There will be four [illegible] made with Miss Pitts, and in two of these Slim will have a romance opposite her. Universal, in line with other companies, has learned in these days it's a good thing to make people laugh. Depressing plays and depressing pictures are [illegible] much [illegible] Slim [illegible] at Universal. He is [illegible] going to be in "Boys of Culver." ### And Still Another

Whoops, another chain gang drammer. This one to be made by Radio with Joel McCrea as head man. Long ago, before Georgia chain gang stories joined the procession of popular numbers, Agnes Christine Johnstone wrote a story called "Freedom." Several companies read it and almost bought it. Then David Selznick gave it the once over and immediately recognized the drama and the possibilities, but before he had even exercised his option Warner Brothers and Universal announced pictures dealing with the hardships of the Georgia chain gang. The more the merrier, howevr, and "Freedom" is now being put into proper shape for production.

Hod Carrier Proves 'Blind' for Liquor Running Gang

Chicago, March 24 (AP)—The sign Mr. Samuel Fink carried spoke for itself. It read:

"Samuel Fink, experienced hod carrier, now out of work, wishes position. Will furnish his own instrument."

This puzzled investigators. So did the fact that Mr. Fink emerged from a building they were watching at about the same time every day. They suspected he was [illegible] that had so one of them called a policeman. He stopped Mr. Fink, reached up and took a bottle from his hod, took one drink and then spat it out.

"Water," he cried, "that's what it is—water."

Mr. Fink laughed for just then the janitor hurried up to the policeman and said:

"So here's where you are. Out here arguing with a hod carrier and while you are doing it a lot of birds out in the back get away with a truckload of hooch."

NEW DEADLOCK FACES WORLD COURT FIGHT

Washington, March 24 (INS)—The Senate battle over American adherence to the World Court entered a fresh deadlock today due to the reluctance of Sec. Stimson to appear before the Senate foreign relations committee for interrogation on the Root protocol.

Sec. Stimson wrote the committee he believed the Root formula clearly [illegible] the [illegible] fifth reservation prohibiting an advisory opinion on any subject in which the United States claims an interest. He protested that illness kept him from making a personal appearance so senators could question him on his views.

The experience of the foreign relations committee marked the [illegible] time in four weeks Stimson has declined to attend a Senate hearing in person but sent a letter to explain his views.

THIS IS LIFE

"THE DEVIL PASSES," BUT A DEVIL DIFFERENT THAN GOETHE'S

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

IT IS NOT INAPPROPRIATE that the hundredth anniversary of Goethe's death should see the performance of Benn Levy's morality play "The Devil Passes," which is coming to Boston next week. I can't guess yet what it will act like, but I have been reading it with a good deal of interest. On the whole, the Morality plays, the symbolical representations of the problems of life, have always done pretty well in the theater.

PROF. ROGERS

Although there is no reference to Goethe in the piece, there are at least three or four famous speeches from the early scenes of "Faust" that can serve as mottos for Mr. Levy's story. Of course his Devil is not the tall, red-cloaked figure with the cock's feather and bristling rapier. For Mr. Levy's purposes he is a curate of the Established Church, polite, attractive, a trifle uncanny. Unlike Goethe's Mephistopheles in the guise of a traveling scholar, he seems harmless enough at first. Only as the plot progresses do you begin to guess what he is. Only towards the end does he speak of himself as "a poor devil."

Goethe Wastes No Time

Goethe makes no bones about establishing the nature of his Devil. In the "Prologue in Heaven," the Lord declares:

Of all the spirts that deny
The Scoffer is least irksome to me.
Man is too ready to shirk activity;
In unconditioned rest he fain would live,
Hence this Companion purposely I give him,
Who, stirs, excites him, and even works, though Devil.

This activity, says Goethe, is absolutely necessary for man. The Lord gives Mephisto full power to test man all his life:

For so long as man strives, so long he must err . . .
Yet a good man, in his darkest aberration,
Of the right path is conscious still.

That is man as Goethe sees him, an evolving soul, never perfect, never free from sin or the necessity of struggling, and always pricked on by the spirit of Nihilism that Goethe calls Mephistopheles. In the very first scene with Faust, where the Devil enters in the guise of a black poodle, he speaks of himself with mocking frankness in words which really should be the motto of Dr. Levy's play:

Who art thou, then?
Part of that power
That ever plans evil, ever works the good!

. . . and a little later he condescends to explain that he represents all the elements which mankind names as destruction, sin or evil—these are his own peculiar element.

Out of such conceptions, whether he remembered Goethe or not, does Mr. Levy build his surprising and ingenious play. His Devil is the servant of God and his sinners seek blindly the right path by devious routes of which they are ashamed. And the Devil knows better than any of us that at heart Man is a lot better than he pretends to be.

Theologically, there are the very gravest objections to this doctrine, but it is so much of a piece with the bland self-satisfaction with which Liberalism everywhere regards man that it ought to be popular. It is very nice to think that, no matter how much Man strives to be bad, his own nature will not let him succeed. It is very nice to think that, no matter how great the Evil in the world, even that Evil may be considered the instrument and the will of God and thus destined to turn to good. It is even nice, although perhaps a bit terrifying, to think that the Devil is only our personal Muldoon, whose business it is to exercise us into shape, no matter how reluctant we are.

Stock Villains in Old Days

Human conduct becomes so easy when you personify evil or personify good. Some of my readers will remember how, years ago, Mr. George Arliss chilled our spines in Molnar's "The Devil," that suave, perfectly groomed and tailored, cigarette-smoking and entirely continental villain. But Mr. Arliss has a genuine flair for the devilish. Mr. Levy's curate is a gentleman to the finger tips. Why, by the way, is the Devil always a perfect gentleman? I suspect that it is less in compliment to the Devil than in disparagement of the gentleman.

The innocent democracy of our fathers' time was perfectly sure that a villain was always recognizable as a perfect gentleman in evening dress, cape overcoat, silk topper, moustache, cigarette and sneer. No farm boy was ever a villain, no workingman; villainy was reserved for the well-to-do. Apparently your true democrat always visualizes the Devil as a silk-stocking, never as one of his own class.

It is an old, old bid for popularity in the theater. No less a person than William Shakespeare remarked:

"The Prine of Darkness is a gentleman!"

and Samuel Taylor Coleridge in his poem "The Devil's Walk" describes his Majesty as dressed out in the highest fashion of the Georgian era, with tight breeches, high hat, and blue coat "with a hole where the tail came through," as he went abroad to view man's iniquity and came to the conclusion that he was beaten at his own game.

Who but Mark Twain would have imagined that Satan had a nephew? Yet in "The Mysterious Stranger" he tells us all about him. And one of the most touching episodes in his "Autobiography" is that in which Mark's mother (the Aunt Polly of Tom Sawyer) is roused by intentional baiting into a spirited and pitying defence of the Devil, as the one who most needs our prayers and gets none of them.

He has had an unholy fascination for man over many, many centuries, from the Adversary who walks in the courts of God at the opening of the "Book of Job," down through the brutal and repellent spirit of Marlowe's "Dr. Faustus," through Goethe's intellectual and philosophical concept, down to Mr. Levy's dream of him still walking upon our earth in "The Devil Passes." He is a source of constant and legitimate interest to thinking man.

Ill Mother Pleads for Someone to Adopt Son

Twice the Same

Morris Rodman, Allston drugstore manager, held up for the second time and Mrs. Eleanor Bennett, who was telephoning in the store on both occasions. (Staff photos)

WOMAN VIEWS THUG SUSPECTS

It was the misfortune of Mrs. Eleanor Bennett of North Harvard st., Allston, to be in the drugstore of Morris Rodman, 253 North Harvard st., both times he was held up.

Unnerved by her experience she went to police headquarters today to try to identify suspects, while Rodman also was there, gloomily declaring gunmen might soon drive him out of business.

Rodman was robbed of $106 last night, while Mrs. Bennett was in a telephone booth calling a relative. It all happened so swiftly she was not aware of the holdup until she stepped from the booth just as the men were leaving the store.

Two months ago gunmen made an attempt to rob the place but got nothing, and at that time Mrs. Bennett was telephoning. The robbers were startled when they suddenly discovered somebody was in the phone booth and ran.

Lourie Didn't Even Know Car Was Gone

Asst. Atty.-Gen. George P. Lourie received a surprise today.

Until police called to inform him that his car had been found in Woburn, Lourie never knew it was lost, strayed or stolen.

He thought it was safely stowed away in the garage at his home, 54 Ellison rd., Newton.

PENURY STALKS YOUNG MALDEN DIVORCEE

Mrs. Covington, Confined to Bed, Sees Boy Suffering Hardships

Ill and unable to provide for her 3-year-old boy, Mrs. Mary E. Covington, young Malden divorcee, appealed today, through the Boston Evening American, for some kind family to adopt him.

Since her divorce, Mrs. Covington, willing to do any work to provide for the youngster, has waged a bitter struggle to make both ends meet, but the best she has been able to do, even in fortunate weeks, is to earn $15 a week doing house work in Malden homes.

Out of her maximum of $65 a month income from this work, she must pay $20 a month rent for her poverty pinched home, but it is a rare month when the total income is $65 and the balance after the rent is paid is insufficient to provide food, fuel, clothing and light for mother and child.

For a number of days now, the heartbroken mother has been ill in bed, unable to care for the boy, who patters around the cold rooms, feeding and amusing himself as best he can, but in constant danger of taking cold and becoming ill.

She expressed the hope today, putting aside her own feelings, that the boy, Frederick, will be adopted by a family in which there now are no children and which will give him the care and education every mother wishes for her son.

Bright Sunday Seen for Easter Parade

Early predictions today forecast probable clear weather for Easter Sunday.

Tonight and tomorrow will be [illegible] but temperatures will rise tomorrow, the weather man said. A slight snow flurry that visited the city early today was soon swept to sea.

BARK SAVES PUP'S HOME

"Queenie," the Berry children's pet dog, had been destined to be ousted from her bed and board at 621 Cross st., Malden, today, but her bark saved her. She barked when a burglar got into the house last night, so Edward J. Berry has decided she is too valuable a watch dog to give away or sell. She is shown here with Doris, 9, and Edward, Jr., her owners and playmates. (Staff photo)

Mayor Has Cold in Chest, Stays Home

A cold [illegible] which has caused congestion, kept Mayor Curly in his home today, but word came to City Hall from the Jamaicaway that the city's chief did not expect to be away more than a [illegible] WBZ and his address in the Roosevelt campaign was given by Governor's Councillor James H. Brennan of Charlestown.

OFFERED FOR ADOPTION

Do you want a three-year-old boy in your home? Mrs. Mary E. Covington, young Malden divorcee, is offering this boy—her boy, Freddy Dale Covington. She claims that she can no longer support him. They live at 233 Eastern ave., Malden.

PET DOG ROUTS BURGLAR

Queenie was all set with [illegible] Malden.

Queenie is a three-month-old pup whose mischevious ways in the household of Mr and Mrs Edward J. Berry had decided Berry to sell the dog, but then came last night.

As Queenie slumbered, with one eye not so tight and with one ear tuned for all strange sounds, she heard a window being raised and then heard a strange footstep in the house.

Immediately Queenie went into action, chiefly vocal, and her barking roused the household. Berry, believing a fire had started, rushed into the room where Queenie and the two children, Edward, Jr., six, and Doris, nine, were in occupancy with their noisy pet.

He arrived in the room just in time to see an intruder flee from outside the window which he had raised in an attempt, police believe, to rob the house.

Today the father said he had altered his opinion about Queenie —and mischievous or not, the pup remains "one of the Berrys."

Picture Operators Ask Strike Sanction

Papa Leto acknowledged defeat and took a chance, but the police found out about it and had him before Judge Zottoli.

Leto asked for time to be allowed to get the license.

"After trying to get rid of the dog five times, what do you want to keep him now for?" court inquired.

"Because," said Leto, "my boy loves the mutt and the mutt loves the boy and I guess I'll have to find some way to get a license."

MURDER OF THE NIGHT CLUB LADY

New Thatcher Colt Detective Mystery

By Anthony Abbot

Scorpions for Lola Baldwin Wrote

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

At 11:30 on New Year's Eve, Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt arrives at the exclusive Mayfair Club in response to a mysterious summons from District Attorney Merle Dougherty. The latter informs Colt he believes Lola Carewe, known as "The Night Club Lady," widow of Gaylord Gifford the cotton millionaire, is the "brains" of responsible for numerous jewel robberies perpetrated recently which baffle the police. [illegible] Dr. Baldwin, next victim of mysterious death, leaves a startling statement.

NOW READ ON—

DR. BALDWIN'S statement [illegible]

"I was horror-stricken at this demand. I looked at her, as she sat before the fireplace in her living room, as if she were a fiend from hell. The devil, I thought must be a woman. What reason could Lola have for a poisonous insect unless murder were stirring in her own heart, her own head, yes, and her shapely white hands? She was the one who set out to kill.'

"I uttered a positive protest. I told her I would not do what she asked. It was the first time that I had refused to do anything for her since she had me in her power. But she did not take my rebellion seriously. The very calmness with which she heard my revolt against her demand caused me to feel the weakness of my stand. Since I had been taking orders from Lola Carewe I had been wading deeper in crime all the time. Now she could denounce me to the police, not only for the death of her husband, from which I could have extricated myself, disgraced it is true, but at least free—but now I was guilty of half a thousand offenses that would send me to the federal prison at Atlanta. She told me not to be silly. I finally told myself that she was right. I believed then that a freedom bought by a murder would be better than to go to prison and fasten on my family the penalty of my crimes.

ORDERS TO KILL

"I did not stop to reason, then, that I would be only opening the door to further enormities. Once Lola had been enmeshed in a murder plot, I would, indeed, be owned by that woman. She could order me to kill as often as she liked.

But this I did not realize, then, or suppose I did realize it, to tell the truth, but overriding all such safe calculations was the one desire to protect myself. I was afraid of Lola Carewe. Besides, what danger was I running to provide her with the little thing she asked—an insect whose bite was positively deadly? How was I to know what she would use it for?

"It was with such base and specious reasoning that I persuaded myself. I went to a Spanish youth whom I know—Ricardo Villafranca is his name—and talked to him about my quest. Ricardo is the proprietor of one of the laboratory supply houses with which I have dealt in the past. He specializes in Central and South American specimens. Ricardo told me that he believed a certain scorpion, very frequently found in the Durango region of Mexico, was the most certain in its death-dealing proclivities. He had one which he showed me and upon my paying a fee he let the scorpion free from its box to attack a dog. The death of the animal from that bite was swift and terrible; in all my experience as a physician I have never seen anything quite like it. More than one there has been one of the frightful creatures in a little box on my desk here, close to my ear. I could hear a soft noise that it made in the box. Death within the reach of my hand —and making a soft noise."

"But I must not let my morbid state of mind intervene between my purpose and this page. I must write the truth about Lola Carewe down on paper. At any moment I am liable to be killed. For I did not realize that when I went on the errand of buying her deadly insects, she had fully resolved that I was to be one of her victims.

"How did I know that? All in due course, my friend—you whom I do not know, but whose eyes now fall upon this manuscript. I

Mrs. McFadden, 45, Wife of an Invalid War Vet, Faces Loss of $18.90-a-Week Place

Three leading applicants for a charwoman's job at Lynn police headquarters, each over 60 years of age, will undergo physical examinations, the civil service commission ruled today.

This action is to settle the controversy over the position now held by Mrs. Annie McFadden, 45-year-old wife of an invalid Spanish War veteran.

Mrs. McFadden was threatened [illegible] the loss of her $18.90 a week position when the commission [illegible] that one of the three leading candidates must be appointed or the pay of Mrs. McFadden, fifth on the list, would be stopped, and the entire police payroll delayed.

Mayor Manning and Superintendent of Buildings Dineen, in behalf of the woman, contended that the first three on the list were not strong enough for the heavy work and suggested that physical examinations be held.

The Civil Service Commission, acting on the suggestion, today notified the three women to appear at the Commission gymnasium in [illegible] st., Boston, for examination.

CHANGES TIMES CALLAN CAN SEE THE CHILDREN

Judge McCoole Modifies Custody Award and Sets Definite Hours

Judge McCoole, in Dedham Probate Court today modified his custody decree accompanying the divorce won by Mrs. Mary Callan of Milton against John Callan, former rector of fashionable St. Andrew's Episcopal Church in Wellesley.

In the original decree Judge McCoole ruled that Callan might see his two children given into custody of the mother "at all reasonable times."

Last week Callan filed contempt of court charges against his former wife, charging she had refused to allow him to see the children at all.

During the hearing on his charge, a conference was called by Judge McCoole, and during the conference an agreement was reached and the contempt action dropped.

As a result of the agreement Judge McCoole decreed today that Callan may have the children at his home each Sunday between noon and 4:30 p. m., on each of their birthdays from 3:30 to 4:30 p. m., on Christmas Day 1932 from 11 a. m. to 4:30 p. m., and similarly on every alternate Christmas thereafter, and may have the right to see them on Wednesdays during certain hours.

In the event that either of the children is ill the divorced father must be allowed to see them at any time, the court decreed.

TOWN TO VOTE ON BATHING

Because of objection to bathing in the Upper Mystic Lakes at Winchester by many residents near the lakes, the Winchester selectmen will have the voters decide the question and a vote will probably be taken at the next town meeting session.

These are the only two bathing beaches in town and neither have any bathhouses or other accommodations.

Opposition to the impending federal tax legislation was recorded today at a meeting of the directors of the National Retail Dry Goods Association held in New York.

President P. A. O'Connell, of Boston, head of E. T. Slattery Co., opposed on the ground that it constitutes another form of sales tax [illegible] principle of taxation [illegible] ability to pay.

A gift of $12,000, which will enable the research staff of the New England Deaconess Hospital to carry on with experiments that it is hoped will lead to important discoveries in the study of cancer, has been made to the hospital by a benefactor who wishes to remain anonymous, it has been learned.

The authorities of the hospital believe that certain doctors on the staff are on the verge of making rapid advances in the study of this disease. At present, those in charge do not wish to make known the particulars of the research work, preferring to wait until success is assured.

Part of gift will be used for the care of needy cancer patients, as was stipulated by the donor. This part of the fund will be used mostly for patients who can pay something, but are not able to pay the full sum.

PERSONALITIES OF AIR

For those who want to know what's become of Leo Reisman, this solution has been offered: he's been in hibernation arriving at statistical conclusions.

Leo has doped out that the chromatic scale yields over six billion possibilities in the construction of melodies.

Still, hit songs of today recall to grandma the mazurkas, polkas and minuets she danced to way back B. C. (Before Crooners.)

Then again, with six billion possibilities for chunes, they'd've been exhausted yrs. ago.

Because it's been estimated that for every time a baby draws its first breath, someone, somewhere, has just written a song.

Which is one reason why the paper and pencil industries are flourishing. And, oh yes, the waste basket makers, too.

His Holiness Pope Pius will be heard on the NBC April 3 in a b'dcast from St. Peter's Cathedral, Vatican City . . . After a lengthy lapse the Met is hiring radio stars again. # GIRL WHO SPURNED RICHES FEARED DEATH BY GANGSTERS

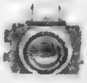
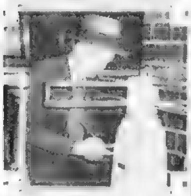
At the L St. Baths With the Candid Camera

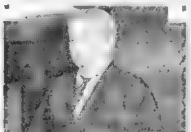


By CANDID CAMERA

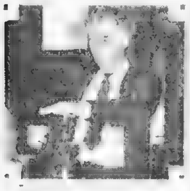
My assignment yesterday was over to the L Street Bath House in South Boston. This is one of the latest and most up-to-date municipal baths in the country. The building is but a year old and was erected at a cost of $500,000. The men's department has facilities for 1000 bathers, and the women and girls about 1000.



On entering the bath house persons pass through a turnstile, which records each entrant. Thus John J. Donovan can tell, by just looking at a meter, how many persons have gone in.



The bathing equipment is complete, even to soap and towels, for those who would have a shower when coming from the salt water. The bath house is equipped with hot and cold showers, and [illegible] water shower. James Coughlin, an attendant, is passing soap and towel to a bather.



Besides the bath, for swimmers and bathers, there is a solarium, equipped with a special type of glass, which enables the energizing sun rays to come through. There is a small fee attached to the use of the solarium. Hugh McNamee is shown stamping admission cards.

John Mahoney is showing how it's done. He sits in the solarium. The hot rays of the sun beat in upon him and he is not bothered while he breathes. (Staff photos.)

BELIEVED SHE WAS GOING 'FOR A RIDE'

Had Been Threatened Because She Discovered the Real Status of Elsmore Band

Mrs. Irene Fore, who gave up riches to consort unknowingly with gangsters, again today assumed a leading role in the dramatic story of the capture of the "Riverway Gang," whose leader was killed by police.

Police of Roxbury Crossing [illegible] revealed that Mrs. Fore [illegible] she was being taken for a ride [illegible] the Riverway apartment [illegible] Harry Elsmore was dead and [illegible] other men.

She had discovered the [illegible] of Elsmore and one of his companions, according to the police, and had been threatened with death if she made one false move.

As police revealed it, the girl was divorced by her wealthy young husband two weeks ago.

DEATH THREAT

She spent much of her time since then in the company of Elsmore.

On Tuesday she found out for certain what she had gradually begun to suspect, that her companions were gunmen.

That evening they noticed her [illegible] what she had discovered and [illegible] exposure [illegible] her.

And as she left the apartment she thought she was being led to her death. When Elsmore's gun fired she thought she was being fired upon.

Then [illegible] the police and Elsmore's death the capture of the others was for her rescue.

COLLEGE ROMANCE

It was also revealed [illegible] she became the wife of [illegible] of Brookline when he was at [illegible] Brown University [illegible] in 1928. They were married in Pawtucket, where her parents lived.

She was [illegible] and he was 21. The following year [illegible] left college after graduating. [illegible] at the end. The couple have a four-year-old child.

Robert Ducayne, arrested at the time Elsmore waged his fatal battle with police, was linked with two holdups today, according to the police, when victims picked him from a lineup in headquarters.

VIEWED BY VICTIMS

Twenty-eight holdup victims viewed Ducayne and Raymond Boudrot, also arrested as a suspected member of Elsmore's gang, and other suspects.

Ducayne was identified by Nathan [illegible], who has a pharmacy in [illegible] ave., and his clerk Frank [illegible] as a man who robbed [illegible] last Monday.

He was later arraigned in Roxbury court and held in $20,000 bail. He pleaded guilty to carrying a gun, but not guilty to robbing Ulian and stealing an auto. Hearing was set for March 29.

He was also picked out by F[illegible] Carroll, Park Dale st., Somerville, clerk of a store in Tremont st., South End, as one of three robbers who got $7 from the cash register Monday night.

NOT POSITIVE

Boudrot "looked like" the robber who got $160 from Isaac [illegible] according to this holdup victim, but he was not positive.

Another prisoner [illegible] Dickinson [illegible] was picked out by John Long, manager of a [illegible] Longwood ave. [illegible] and by Miss Regina McCatskul of Longwood ave., a customer, as "looking like" the man who got $22 there.

Dickinson said he was on the way from Florida at the time and police admitted he looked like Joseph Lawrence, alias Hopping, who was wounded and arrested after the Elsmore shooting.

Somerville Fireman Robbed by Bold Pair in Broad Daylight

Hoseman George H. Drew of the Somerville fire department usually cashes the pay checks of eight or ten of his comrades. Today, however, he cashed only his own and it was just as well.

Two men, who evidently knew of his custom, held him up in an alleyway off Broadway in broad daylight while he was en route from the bank to his home, 22 Sewall st. The robbers, both young, escaped with Drew's pay, $42.

Drew is former vice-commander of the Metropolitan Firemen's Post, American Legion.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

Spinach and Carrots in New Ways

By MARTHA LEE

SPINACH and carrots are not exactly anathema to the average person though few people seem to really hanker for carrots and I've yet to find many people who [illegible] are definitely enamored of spinach.

Yet carrots are one of the most wholesome of vegetables valuable for their vitamin content, their rich storehouse of calcium, phosphorus and iron, their valuable vegetable sugar content which is sometimes as high as 10 per cent.

Spinach is chiefly valuable for its roughage qualities, its important mineral content. The French who can always be counted upon to supply a piquant comment call it the [illegible] broom, and because they are naturally thrifty and hate to [illegible] more expensively than necessity, the [illegible] of butter.

After all, isn't there something pretty [illegible] about well cooked spinach with its liberal quantities of butter, salt and pepper with just a wee dash of lemon juice or vinegar?

Here is a recipe for spinach as well as one for carrots.

SAUTEED SWEET POTATOES AND CARROTS

- 2 cups diced sweet potatoes.
- 1½ cups diced carrots
- Butter, salt, pepper
- Minced parsley

Dice the sweet potatoes the same size as the carrots and boil [illegible] tender. Combine the potatoes and drained carrots and saute in [illegible] of butter in skillet. Season to taste and sprinkle over a little minced parsley. Serves six.

POTATO AND SPINACH PATTIES

- 3 cups dry mashed potatoes
- 1½ cups spinach
- 3 tbsps. butter
- Salt and pepper
- 1 egg

Ruth's Choice

LESS THAN A MONTH after Ruth Henderson became engaged she realized what a terrible mistake she had made

She had just drifted into her engagement to Rodney Hall. They had known each other since childhood, their families were [illegible] friends and Ruth hadn't [illegible] anyone else. It was generally expected that they would marry and when Rodney proposed she accepted him. [illegible] that it wasn't quite what she had expected. That there was no bright glamor to it.

And then she met Phil Loring. Rodney introduced him to her at a dance. "Phil's an old friend of mine," he said. "But I haven't seen him in years. He's been running around tearing down mountains and filling up rivers for some engineering firm."

Phil asked Ruth to dance. [illegible] Rodney was engaged, he said, [illegible] he had been [illegible] lucky. His tone was light, but Ruth realized that he [illegible]

[illegible] that night when she [illegible] began to [illegible] Rodney [illegible] think of what [illegible] happen if she were free. [illegible] considering [illegible] no [illegible]

Now and then she met Phil Loring, and once or twice she even contrived to have Rodney take her to places where she knew he would be.

The days drifted by with no [illegible] in sight. Fortunately Rodney seemed to be in no hurry about the marriage. Whenever his parents or her parents urged them to fix the date it was usually Rodney who said "[illegible] no hurry about it." For that much Ruth was thankful.

Then she suddenly realized she wasn't spending as much time with Rodney as she ordinarily had. Almost every night she had been with him but now two or three days would pass without any ever phoning.

He [illegible] phoned one night and said

"I'm sorry but I won't be able to take you to the dance tonight, something turned up at the last minute and I have to attend to it. Why don't you go with some one else?"

Ruth thought rapidly. Then she said

"Who would take me at this late hour?"

Rodney said "Well, let me [illegible] Can't you [illegible] But Ruth interrupted him.

"It will have to be some friend of yours," she said, "and you'll have to call him. How about that friend who just came back to town. What's his name?" She tried to be casual.

"Phil Loring," answered Rodney. "All right. I'll try to get him. You wait there until you hear from me."

Phil did take Ruth to the dance. Never had she spent so happy an evening and when it was over she knew she was in love with him.

When [illegible] her he said "I wish I [illegible] you again but—" He stopped. "Yes?" prompted Ruth. "Nothing," he said. "It was just something I was thinking about. You see—" Again he stopped. Then he said, "Wait."

Ruth didn't understand, but somehow her spirits felt lighter. So much so that when Rodney remained away for nearly a week she hardly noticed his absence. And then Phil Loring telephoned her.

"May I see you tonight?" he asked. "It's something important—something about Rodney." She agreed.

Ruth was wearing her most becoming frock when he arrived. With [illegible] any preliminaries he plunged into the subject of his call.

"Rodney asked me to see you," he said. "He didn't have nerve enough himself. You see, shortly after he became engaged to you he met another girl and fell in love with her. He didn't know what to do, he said. He couldn't give up this other girl, but he was afraid of hurting you—he thought you were deeply in love with him. You see, he came to me for advice."

"And what did you tell him?" asked Ruth.

"I told him to marry the girl," said Phil. "I told him that you would be glad to break your engagement to him and I'm going to call him up and tell him so—that you have broken it. You have, haven't you? You can't be engaged to two men."

Ruth nodded her assent.

This Week, Next Week and the Week After

These are sad times, maties. It's getting so that all of Boston's nights are filled with gruntings and groanings and the sound of Rachel weeping in the wilderness and wailing for Father to come home from the rasslin' woods and tarry awhile with the bairns about the home hearthside. Atop of the grunt and groan paroxysm last night, comes another huggin' match tonight. So much action is promised that a stranger sojourning within our gates is liable to mistake the Arena show for a Fourth of July celebration in the Booby Hatch. All the nuts will be there, flashing their insanity diplomas. If you don't think there's going to be some tall raving just lamp the bill of fare over there a couple of parasangs to starboard. Any show that brings together Al Morelli and tough Dan Koloff, Ed Don George and Jack Forsgren, Charlie Strack and Joe Malcewicz and added for good measure, Marin Plestina thrown in with six opponents—six, count 'em—certainly should have the wrestling addicts standing on their left ears, wiggling their toes frantically and filling the air with demoniacal 'Arfs' Arfs'!

If she isn't at the matside itself, she'll be over there in a cozy apartment on Beach st., Revere, a handsome, brown-eyed bride of a fortnight, listening in on the radio to see how Al Morelli is making out against burly Dan Koloff. Al Morelli happens to be her husband. And from the flashing brown eyes of that pretty bride it may be well for Dan Koloff if the beautiful Signora Morelli gets the bout over the air instead of at the matside. The female of the species is more deadly than the male, y'know. It is hard telling what might happen to Dan if he should get too rough with pretty Mrs. Morelli's brand new hubby and the beautiful signora should be in scratching range.

Al Morelli, veteran of four years' football warfare and more than 100 grueling mat encounters, is pretty well equipped to take care of himself even against a cageful of lions. But you can't tell a bride that, or a mother. You know how the fond Ma of Nels Stewart, toughest of the tough hockey players, sits in the stand cheering. "Oh, I do hope they don't get too rough with my boy, Nelson."

While harping on futurities we want to get a paragraph out of our system on the coming Rosenbloom-Heuser embroglio. Time, one week from tomorrow night. Place, the Boston Garden. Fellow fans and fannies that's going to be a "Wow!" It will be the greatest leather tossing fiesta since ol' Billy Hamilton cleaned the gobs off Charlestown Bridge. "Slappy Maxey," loose jointed, relaxed, dances around, arms dangling and slapping and cuffing a rival with socks from all angles and positions a la the late Harry Greb. Heuser comes tearing out of his corner like a scared bobcat, spitting and clawing away with the choicest and fastest assortment of jabs, jolts, hooks, swings, uppercuts and crosses you ever saw. Betwixt and between them Rosenbloom and Heuser will uncork a hazard of blows and a cyclone of socks that will have the fite fans acting crazier than a wrestling mob—and that's going some! It'll be a meeting of two dyspeptic bobcats!

Rosenbloom is the Playboy of Boxing. Dizzy blondes are his sparring partners. The night clubs his training quarters. They say he uses champagne as a rubdown. We doubt the rubdown end of it. But if there is any training rule Maxey doesn't violate, no one ever heard of it. How he gets away with it is a mystery. But he shows up at gong time apparently in the pink, as whizzing as a buzz-saw and as tireless as an eight-day clock. He's just as unorthodox in his boxing as he is in his training. An opponent never is sure of what Maxey is going to do next. Just when you expect Maxey to back away and cover up he comes bouncing in like Kipling's Inja-rubber Idjiot on a spree, tossing leather something scandalously.

An orthodox boxer simply can't do anything with Rosenbloom. But Maxey may find that he can do plaguey little against Heuser, for Hurricane Heine is almost as unorthodox as is Maxey. Heuser is just the type of opponent to make Rosenbloom work against himself. Maxey has been running at a dizzy clip for quite some time. He's just about due to run down. And this crazy socking Dutchman from over the Rhine, Ad Heuser, is just the type of opponent Rosenbloom is likely to run down on. Fast as Maxey cuffs Heuser may sock faster. Whoever wins, the shindy will be a thriller from first to final bell. Outside of a Schaaf Retzlaff encounter there's none we would care more to see than the coming Rosenbloom Heuser saturnalia of sock.

Our Braves don't seem to be doing so well down there in old St. Pete. The Yanks have been belting them around something scandalously. To dyed-in-the-wool baseball fans, however that is more cheering than depressing. Most of the "Spring Champions" blew up after coming North. The team that looks the worst in the training camp ofttimes become the best in the good old summer time. Here's hoping that will be the case with the Tribe. Well, week after next we'll get a chance to see how both Braves and Red Sox shape up and right on the home heath. Come on, Calendar, step on it!

Passing the Puck

By BILL GRIMES

Manager Eddie Powers is receiving congratulations for the wonderful final spurt of his Bruin Cubs, which landed Boston's Can-Am representative in second place. The Cubs wound up the season with six consecutive victories. For the fifth time in as many years, a Powers club offset what it may have lacked in talent by an indomitable spirit.

Any club that can come through under pressure as the Cubs did is a serious contender for championship honors. It is doubtful if any professional outfit ever possessed a finer spirit or showed more determination to win, regardless of the odds, than the Boston teams Eddie Powers has managed in the Canadian American League for the past six years.

Not only have the Cubs and before them the Tigers been a credit to Boston, but they have stood and will always remain in the eyes of the fans as a great tribute to the ability of Eddie Powers as a coach and a manager.

The majority of the Bruins are pulling out of town as rapidly as they can pack their trunks and receive their railroad accommodations from Harry Lee, the C. P. R. agent.

Regardless of the outcome of the two games in Montreal, the Rangers and the Les Canadiens will pack the Garden next Sunday night. Les Canadiens are the best box office attraction in hockey, and with the Stanley Cup at stake even the New York fans should appreciate the importance of these games.

The Ottawa owners have about as much chance of having their [illegible] to the N. H. L. accepted as the well known snowball has of [illegible]

Hartford, Ct., March 24 (INS).—[illegible] Charles [illegible] Daniels, 83, who died [illegible] of injuries and exposure suffered in a fall on a snowy road in Colchester, was the man who sent Connie Mack to the big leagues.

Daniels was manager of the Hartford team in the old National League in 1875. He purchased the lanky Cornelius McGillicuddy, catcher, from Meriden for some small change and a few years later sold him and four other players to Washington for $3500.

Daniels became one of the National League's first umpires, working for from $5 to $10 a game. He umpired also in several other leagues.

With the Bruins on the sidelines the annual play-off for the Stanley cup, emblematic of the world's championship, will get underway tonight in Montreal and Detroit.

The New York Rangers and Les Canadiens, winners in their respective divisions, clash in the Montreal Forum in the first [illegible] of their best three out of five series. Maroons tackle the [illegible] in the first [illegible] of their [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] counts [illegible]

With a veteran [illegible] the same [illegible] that [illegible] the championship back to Canada after the [illegible] had [illegible] in the States for [illegible] Les Canadiens are favorites [illegible] to defend the Stanley cup [illegible] the Rangers are [illegible]

The Flying Frenchmen have seen [illegible] this season. They were obliged to battle through the final game of the regular season before they were assured of first place. A defeat at the hands of Toronto in the last game would have cost Les Canadiens the honor and financial benefits that the coupled with the winning of first place [illegible] Maple Leafs would have been a [illegible] of the [illegible] championship [illegible] more goal.

Rangers Coasted From Mid-Season

The Rangers coasted along from [illegible] season due to limping [illegible] the American Division club [illegible] They are not [illegible] as the French [illegible] and are not expected to [illegible] when the [illegible] tonight [illegible] before the [illegible] Canadiens fans who will pack the [illegible]

Les Canadiens are great money players. Opening the series at home is a big advantage to the Flying Frenchmen. Although they are a fine road club, Les Canadiens are always at their best at the Forum. They thrive on applause with which their followers are most generous. And woe to the officials who fail to call them to the satisfaction of Les Canadiens rooters.

The Rangers probably are the smartest club in the N. H. L. If they get the jump on Les Canadiens they will be hard to beat, for they can fold up and play a most effective type of defensive hockey. They are as fast as Canadiens, with the exception of Howie Morenz. Although possibly they are not quite as tricky as Sylvio Mantha, Marty Burke and George Hainsworth.

Wide Open Play Is Expected

As both clubs have great faith in their speed and will be out to [illegible] the play should be wide open. If such proves to be [illegible] Johnny Gagnon should be the ranking star.

The little winger has been playing wonderful hockey this season in games where the going is not too [illegible] He is as quick as a flash and packs a [illegible] He will be at his best against [illegible] of the Ranger type [illegible] and Earl Seibert [illegible] him. In this [illegible] Howie Morenz [illegible] Aurel Joliat.

Defensively, the Rangers and Les Canadiens are about on a par. Johnson and Seibert have offered John Ross Roach the best protection he has received since the days when great Ching and Taffy Abel were out in front of him.

Although he has faced [illegible] opposition George Hainsworth has had one less goal scored on him than Roach. [illegible] and Mantha are the toughest outer defense in the N. H. L. to outguess. Moreover they stay on the defense and [illegible] the forwards to do the [illegible] which has worked out advantageously. They are letter perfect in both poke and body checking [illegible] true of Johnson and Seibert.

Despite the fact that Bill and Bun Cook rate higher in the American division individual standing, the Frenchmen's first line has the edge over the veteran New York [illegible] Morenz is naturally a standout. He is always at his best during the Stanley Cup series. He is a tireless worker and it is impossible [illegible] to stop him [illegible]

[illegible] Rangers and Les Canadiens [illegible] play the [illegible] on Saturday [illegible] New York where they will [illegible] Sunday night in Madison Square Garden and then will remain in Gotham until a decision is reached.

Although the Maroons may experience some trouble opening up any real advantage over the Falcons in Detroit, they will have little trouble disposing of Jack Adams' crew.

During these 39 years we have grown stronger with each succeeding year, and the last month of last year was the greatest month in the history of this company.

The Policy Planks in the Regal Platform are the same today as when I started this business 39 years ago—Maker to Wearer—Factory to Feet. One Quality, One Profit, One Price—and that price today is $5.85—the lowest price for Regal Shoes since 1917.

We have saved Millions of Customers Millions of Dollars—and we will continue in the future as in the past, to give our customers the benefit of any further reductions in the cost of raw materials. The Purchasing Power of a National Institution is now at your Service.

For Easter 1932 we have reproduced a new Town Shoe designed this year for London's Exclusive West End trade by Bartley, Bootmaker to the Prince of Wales.

Bartley whittled out this new last as the Custom Bootmaker's answer to the growing demand to flatter the foot with a shoe that has a shorter fore part and a higher heel.

Bartley's Original which you can see in our windows today is made of the famous Black "King Calf." This wonderful upper leather has certain qualities and virtues that can only be produced through the old-fashioned, expensive slow vegetable tannage.

It is soft and pliable and will not stretch or shrink. It has a smooth, firm surface and will hold its shape, and hold a shine. It is used exclusively by Bartley in London and the Regal Shoe Company in America.

This is only one of 60 new Easter models that we are showing in our windows today. We have reproduced every distinctive new last and pattern shown by the most exclusive custom shoe makers of London, Paris and New York. In reproducing these models, we are using the finest domestic tannages and imported skins tanned in Holland, Germany, Scotland, England and France.

OILS LEADERS IN WALL STREET'S BRIEF RALLY

New York, March 24—Strength in the oils, which spurted from 1 to 2 points on the advance in Mid-Continent crude prices, failed today to lift the stock market out of its rut. The rally was brief.

Pre-holiday influences due to tomorrow's closing for Good Friday dominated the forenoon trading and restricted activity to a low level. Volume in the first half-hour was only 100,000 shares, the smallest in a long time.

OILS COME TO LIFE

Petroleum shares came to life on the announcement that Continental Oil and other leading Mid-Continent purchases would advance oil prices to a $1 top on April 1. Standard of New Jersey rose more than a point on heavy volume and Standard of California nearly two points. Low-priced oils joined the advance, with Continental Oil being taken in large blocks at advancing prices.

The rest of the market received a temporary stimulus, but leading issues like U. S. Steel and American Telephone failed to score more than fractional advances and slipped back into their lethargy when the flurry in the oils quieted down.

The feature in outside markets was a spurt in Sterling, which jumped more than 5 cents here and nearly as much in London. Bonds were steady and dull. Commodities improved, with wheat working higher and cotton showing a better tone after yesterday's weakness.

Rise in the export price of copper was without effect on the metal shares, where dribbling liquidation was still apparent. Anaconda equalled its all-time low. Northern Pacific was higher despite deferment of its dividend yesterday and this steadied the rail shares.

A drop in railroad passenger traffic to the lowest levels in about ten years is reflected in the annual report for 1931 of Pullman, Inc., issued today. Net income was $2,378,632, or 61 cents a share on the capital stock, compared with $16,943,081 or $4.37 a share in 1930.

Payment of $14,428,497 in dividends during the year resulted in a final deficit of $12,149,865, against a surplus of $1,943,215 in the preceding year.

SHORT SALES BAN

New York Stock Exchange today sent a reminder to all of its members that the new short selling restrictions will go into effect on April 1.

The reminder took the form of an admonition from Secretary Ashbel P. Green, saying:

"I am directed by the committee on business conduct to emphasize the fact that these resolutions are operative on April 1 and that no stock may be loaned in any way on and after that date without the separate written authorizations of customers referred to therein."

Stock exchange houses have sent new form letters to their customers asking their position in the matter. A number of leading wire houses have reported most of their customers have answered in the affirmative, although there has been an outspoken minority of customers who have flatly declined to permit the loan of their stocks for short selling purposes.

In effect, the new stock exchange resolution insists members get specific written consent fro mcustomers before they enter agreements to supply bears with the stocks needed for short selling operations. Heretofore, a general blanket agreement wa ssufficient.

Bata Shoe Factory May Make Tires

Washington, March 24—M. Bata, Lynn, Mass., trained shoe manufacturer, may soon start making automobile tires in his new shoe factory in Czecho-Slovakia, according to information received from Belgrade by the U. S. Department of Commerce and made public today.

M. Bata's plans indicate the ever-growing ramifications of the post-war industrial plants of Bata, established at Zlin, Czecho-Slovakia, in order to provide cheap shoes for domestic consumption. But modern methods and intense sales efforts soon developed an extensive world-trade in low-priced shoes, and foreign countries have seen Bata's factories cross their frontiers. Only a short time ago a factory was established in Sweden.

Announcements of Thomas Bata, son of the shoe maker, have stated that the Yugoslavia factory would start work as soon as possible, and would produce not only leather shoes, but also rubber footwear and various rubber products, possibly including tires.

An entire workers' colony will be constructed at Bakovar, and will closely resemble the model workers' community at Zlin, which is now world-famous in industrial circles, it was stated. The Yugoslav factory will produce for distribution throughout the Balkans, in India, and in the Far East, it is reported.

Cuneo Press Reports Profit for '31 Equal to $4.30 a Share

Chicago, March 24—Net profits of the Cuneo Press, Inc., for 1931, after all charges, including increased depreciation and federal taxes, were $891,486 the annual report mailed to stockholders today shows. After deduction of preferred dividends paid, this equalled $4.30 a share on the 170,700 shares of common stock outstanding. In the preceding year net profits were $1,347,212, or $6.96 a share.

While 1931 profits reflect the general economic readjustment, the company, John F. Cuneo, president, states, has shown a gratifying ability to enter other printing fields and obtain a substantial volume of sales. Both dollar and tonnage sales of catalogue and magazine printing showed a decline for the year, due in part to the curtailed circulation of catalogues.

Consolidated balance sheet as at December 31, 1931 shows substantial improvement to have been effected during the year, current assets totaling $3,094,320, including cash and marketable securities of $760,728, against current liabilities of $1,150,332, a working capital ratio of 2.69 to 1. At December 31, 1930, current assets totaled $3,128,949, including cash and securities of $520,682, against current liabilities of $1,379,012, a ratio of 2.27 to 1.

Liquidation In Steel Preferred

New York, March 24 (AP)—In trying to account for the recent persistent selling of U. S. Steel preferred, some Wall Street interests are turning once more to the previously aired theory that insurance companies are liquidating their holdings. Whether true or not, this story is not easy to prove, since insurance companies as a rule give very little information regarding changes in their investments.

Freight Car Loadings Estimated

New York, March 24 (AP)—Atlantic States Shippers' Advisory Board estimates car loadings of freight to be moved in Atlantic States territory during the second quarter at 626,141 cars, against 694,362 in the second quarter of 1931. The Great Lakes Regional Advisory Board estimates second-quarter loadings at 326,804 cars, compared with 410,454 in the 1931 quarter.

American Tin Plate Recalls 1800 Men

New York, March 24 (AP)—Youngstown reports say that approximately 1800 men will be called back to the American Sheet & Tin Plate Company plant at Farrell, Pa., on April 4. The mill will resume operations at about 66 per cent of capacity.

Lackawanna Plans Improvement

New York, March 24 (AP)—Lackawanna Railroad Company will inaugurate its spring improvement program on April 1, according to J. M. Davis, president. Material buying in connection with the work includes 3000 tons of rails, track tools and stone ballast.

Capitol Railroad Plans Get Jolt From Executives

New York, March 24 (INS)—Things are not always what they seem.

To wit:—The conference the other day between President Hoover, 15 railroad executives and the directors of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The railroad executives were called to the White House for a "heart to heart" talk with the President.

The reported reason for the invitation was to iron out a difference of opinion of the Finance Corporation's board on how far the corporation was to go in making loans to railroads.

The day following the conference, the White House issued a statement saying the financial problem confronting the railroads was of smaller dimensions than has been generally believed.

This indicated all was harmony at the "heart to heart" conference, but the statement was not exactly what Wall Street had been anticipating. For nearly a week, old grapevine downtown told of some good railroad news to come out of the Capitol. But the White House statement was barren of any market stimulant.

If the conference had gone according to schedule Wall Street might have had something to get steamed up about. At least enough for a little bullish activity in the market.

* * *

What really transpired at the meeting was something like this: The railroad presidents filed into the White House. The usual greetings were exchanged.

The railroad presidents were assured there would be no difficulty over loans. In fact all their maturities and bond interest this year were virtually guaranteed of payment.

In return for all this assistance the railroad executives were to give their pledge of unstinted buying and expansion of properties, etc. In fact a press release setting forth all this had been prepared. All it lacked, it seems, was the signatures of the 15 railroad men.

Then something happened. Like the well known bolt from the blue, one of the presidents, maybe it was all of them, rose. Throats were cleared and in plain, blunt English the idea was put across the railroads no longer were going to go ahead and spend money on any back to prosperity campaign.

* * *

In fact they were going to curtail their buying. Keep it within the very minimum. The day of extravagances was passed.

One executive, according to the reports, even went so far as venture the opinion the government in the not so distant future would own the railroads anyway.

The upshot of it all was no "rabbit" was pulled from the Washington hat for the stock market.

* * *

Those who attended the conference in addition to President Atterbury of "Pennsy" included E. G. Buckland, chairman, N. Y., New Haven & Hartford and head of Railroad Credit Corp. and J. J. Pelley, president N. Y., New Haven & Hartford.

PENNROAD NET IS INCREASED

Philadelphia, March 24 (AP)—An increase of $26,281 in the 1931 net income is shown in the annual report of the Pennroad Corp., Pennsylvania Railroad subsidiary, to be submitted today at its annual stockholders' meeting.

The net income for the year and credited to earned surplus was $4,495,046. The increase over the 1930 income, the report states, was effected by a decrease in expenses, particularly taxes and general expenses.

Indications are, the report shows, that returns on investments in 1932 will be lower than in 1931.

Merchants Favor New Copeland Bill

New York, March 24—Holding that it is unfair to tax either shippers or the railroads with the cost of examinations made at the Canadian border for contrabrand in cases where no contrabrand is present, the Merchants' Association has asked Senator Reed Smoot, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, for a favorable report on the Copeland bill, which would require that the cost of such searches be met by funds provided under the Tariff act.

Searches to which the bill applies are made in connection with the importation of non-dutiable goods. Often the shipping and unloading costs involved in the Government search for contrabrand liquor reach a considerable volume and the present law makes no provision for their payment by the Government.

Australians Favor Autos From U. S.

Czechs Are Buyers of U. S. Tractors

Washington, March 24—Of the 4652 tractors in Czechoslovakia on Feb. 1, 3590, or about 77 per cent, were from the United States, according to the commerce department's agricultural implement division. Domestic makes ranked second while German makes came third.

'DOLLAR OIL' TO FLOW ANEW

Tulsa, Okla., March 24 (AP)—Dollar oil again will flow from wells of the midcontinent area next week.

The Continental Oil company announced it would post a top price of $1 a barrel for midcontinent crude petroleum, effective April 1. The prevailing top price is 85 cents.

An increase to $1 was sought vainly by state officials of Oklahoma, Kansas and Texas in a campaign for restriction of production last summer and fall. Prices were as low as 10 cents.

Governor William H. Murray cut Oklahoma's output by martial law. National Guardsmen of Texas also were called out. The Kansas flow was reduced by civil action.

Oil men here predicted the new increase, if generally followed, would boost retail gasoline prices.

Illinois Bell Plans More Expenditures

Chicago, March 24—Directors of Illinois Bell Telephone Co. have approved expenditures of $3,324,073 for additions and betterments to the telephone plant in the city of Chicago and $1,866,141 for the territory outside of Chicago, making a total of $5,190,214.

This brings total expenditures for additions and betterments to date this year to $6,691,366.

SIROVICH GETS HALF A VOTE; NOT EVEN HALF FOR WOOLLCOTT

By GILBERT SELDES

GILBERT SELDES

I THINK THAT the important conflict of ideas underlying the stupid quarrel of Congressman Sirovich and the entrenched dramatic critics has not been brought into the open. Fearful of the laws of libel, I do not say that the issue has been deliberately and maliciously confused, but I think it. The Congressman accuses the critics of wise-cracking; the critics murmur something about the Congressman's defeated efforts at playwriting; then they both talk about the theater and eventually Dr. Sirovich is delivering an oration about actors who commit suicide because they are called hams, about the sanctity and dignity of the House of Representatives, and a lot of other extraneous matter. You would never guess, from what he says, that he has a case and a good one. Nor, from what the critics say, that they are aware of their own function.

The Real Issue

The deep division between them is this: The legislator thinks of the theater as a business in which the public has no rights; the critics think of the theater as a public enterprise which happens to be connected with art. Dr. Sirovich sees in a play the equivalent of a can of beans; he is often right. The critics think of it as something closer to medicine, which should not be adulterated. He feels for the producer who has invested some fifty thousand dollars; they think of the public, who may invest three dollars per person until the sum reaches a hundred thousand, and may get second-rate goods for their money.

Critics Know Law

The critics, who ought to know nothing about law, are aware of the restraints placed on adulterers of food and drugs; the Congressman, who ought to know all about it, doesn't seem to know that enterprises dangerous to the public are continually checked by the Government. He who says he is defending the theater has a small conception of its importance; they who are supposed to be ruining the theater seem to think it important enough to be made great and noble.

Big Coffee Show

Several weeks before Dr. Sirovich drew the theater from the bankruptcy notices onto the first page of the newspapers I noted the apparent absurdity of submitting plays, books, musical compositions, paintings and movies to the verdict of the critics. The absurdity, that is, in comparison with the freedom of manufacturers of coffee, men's suits, shoelaces, cold cream, newspapers, stepladders and other articles of commerce. Coffee-tasters exist; they work for the manufacturers. But no manufacturer invites them to make public their findings; he does not give a special kaffee klatsch, from which, after sipping half a cup, the critics fly to their papers to announce under a headline, "Wet Grounds," that Shublanger's coffee is the most watery dish ever offered to the public, but the cups are adequate.

All for Art

In our highly materialistic civilization only the arts are considered worthy of such treatment. The theater used to advertise as freely as the motor car; but no one bothered to criticize the lines of motor cars. We must be really an artistic people. At least, we have been. Consumers' Research and other progressive groups are fighting for such change in the law as will permit open criticism of commercial products.

The Foolcrack

As for the wisecrack, I burn my fingers every time I touch it; once I nearly burned off my whole arm, like Scaevola, that antique Roman. All I like to remember about it is the defense I made to a woman of considerable perception. I said: "After all, Bernard Shaw is a wisecracker." Her answer is the memorable part of the conversation. She said: "Yes, but his are really wise." It is the crack without wisdom that annoys.

Woollcott's Exhibit

As if to prove that Dr. Sirovich is not utterly without sense, Mr. Alexander Woollcott has written, in The New Yorker, a note of dissent on "Mourning Becomes Electra." One gathers from the opening that Mr. Woolcott is not without friends who lunch at the Colony Club, and from the rest of the piece that he has no great admiration for Eugene O'Neill. Neither of these bits of news is actionable. Coming down to criticism, he holds the opinion, not unique, that the first two sections of the trilogy are better than the third. It was desirable that, in the general and excessive laudation of the play, an influential critic should join the few who have noted its serious defects.

A Funny Story

Yet the thing people will remember, at the moment the play is about to go on tour, is the story of the woman who seemed, to the dismay of her escort, to be enthralled by the third part, and who recovered his good opinion by whispering in his ear: "Do you happen to know whether they have kitchenettes in the Beverly-Wilshire?" They will not remember that the mind of man is a strange instrument, wandering in devious paths. They will not think that even in hearing great music, or listening to Shakespeare, or reading Dickens, the whole mind is not kept occupied and a stray thought will come in and, while we continue to listen or to read, actually occupy our minds.

They will not for a moment imagine that the little story does no particular credit to the lady of whom it is recorded, nor to the recorder for thinking it so significant. Perhaps they will remember that Mr. Woollcott, who prints a sneer at "Mourning Becomes Electra," held that "The Green Hat" was one of the great love stories of all time. It would serve him right.

Medical

X-RAY

Examination, consultation and trial treatment absolutely free to all who call before March 27th. D., fulfills the above offer.

STOMACH TROUBLE

Mrs. Edna Bynoe, 30 Williams St., Roxbury, Mass., says: "I had stomach trouble for a year. My food did not digest and gave me palpitation of the heart. I could not sleep or eat. Two doctors had treated me, but I did not improve. Mr. Julian told me how Dr. Walsh had helped him when he had suffered as I did, and I had Dr. Walsh treat me. Dr. Walsh was as successful in my case as he was in Mr. Julian's, and I have sent my friend, who suffered as I did, to Dr. Walsh, and they are well satisfied with Dr. Walsh's treatment. I am pleased at this opportunity to tell others what Dr. Walsh has done for me that they may know where they may go for relief from their suffering."

(Signed) Edna Bynoe.

Reconstruction Agency Should Promote Recovery, Not Bail Out Financiers

The reported hitch between private bankers and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation calls for a showdown. Unless President Hoover uses the prestige of his high office to whip the bankers into line, as Roosevelt did in 1907, he will encourage the belief that the administration is MERELY AN ADJUNCT to the firm of J. P. Morgan & Company.

The issue has been drawn in the case of refinancing the Missouri Pacific Railroad, a client of the Morgan firm.

In accordance with the terms of the Reconstruction Finance Act, the railroad applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission for permission to apply to the government-endowed lending corporation for financial assistance in connection with interest obligations and nearby maturities.

---

The commission, interested in furthering economic revival, authorized loans to take care of interest payments due on February 10 and March 1, but in connection with the April 1 maturity of $23,250,000 the commission suggested that the railroad borrow half from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and ask the bankers to renew the other half of the loan which they held.

And to this statesmanlike proposal, William Wyer, treasurer of the Missouri Pacific, replied:

> "As I advised Mr. Haley and Mr. Howard yesterday, J. P. Morgan & Company, the bankers who hold these notes, have indicated that they are unwilling to agree to such a proposition and believe that these notes should be paid on April 1, 1932, as of which date they have been called."

Thus the issued is whether the government-created Reconstruction Finance Corporation should become a dumping ground for notes which the bankers no longer consider desirable investments.

At best, as the Hearst newspapers have insisted from the outset, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is a scheme for financing the financiers.

At the worst, it could be perverted into a scheme for using public funds to relieve private bankers from the consequences of their own blunders and miscalculations.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation constitutes an unusual experiment in making Uncle Sam hold the bag for special interests.

The experiment can be justified, if at all, only as an emergency measure, provided it succeeds in liquefying a frozen financial situation in a manner which will result in trade and employment gains.

In their own self-interest, bankers should be enlightened enough to recognize that they owe extraordinary co-operation to the federal government in return for the dole to them.

Since the bankers failed to work out their own problems without leaning on the government, they are in no position to dictate.

---

If the bankers can get some new money from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to take care of railroad clients which they have deserted, it is up to them to show a willingness to carry at least part of the risk which they have already incurred.

The government should not be bluffed by the threats of a receivership for a private corporation which it has offered to save from threatened financial trouble.

It would be a SCANDALOUS MISUSE OF PUBLIC FUNDS merely to bail out private bankers.

It would be a RANK BETRAYAL OF PUBLIC TRUST for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to permit private interests to unload upon a public agency the consequences of their mistakes.

---

If the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is to justify its existence, it ought to lend money judiciously in directions where it will create new economic values, rather than merely salvage values already destroyed. It is a stop gap relief agency to tide over needy corporations until the bond market improves sufficiently for them to finance themselves through regular channels.

The Missouri Pacific incident should awaken even the most gullible to the folly of looking for leadership to the very financiers who led the parade of inflation and overcapitalization.

It is more fundamentally helpful to return the idle to payrolls than to pull the PRIVATE IRONS OF ANY BANKERS OUT OF THE FIRE.

Sermons on the Air

One problem agitating the British people is how long a radio sermon should be. This calls to mind the old rector who, on coming down from the pulpit, asked the verger how he liked the sermon. It happened to have been a very lengthy one.

The verger said it reminded him of a wheel—the longer the spoke the more the tire.

Boston radio listeners appear to like their sermons just three minutes long, and that tabloid dimension seems to be the standard on the air. But it must be said of the British clergy that their sermons are fairly short. They all seem to have been impressed by the advice of Disraeli. The nervous young parson whom he had appointed chaplain to Queen Victoria asked him how long a sermon he should preach.

The Prime Minister, we are told, said:

> "If it's no more than an hour, Her Majesty will be gratified. If a half hour, she will be glad. If fifteen minutes, she will be delighted."

"Our Specialty"

In the last year it has become the custom in Boston eating places to label some dish or another "Today's Special." For twenty-five cents more per dish they will print it "Plat du Jour." It's all in line with efficiency and the attack on waste.

From Germany comes the news that an enterprising proprietor labels the leading dish: "What the proprietor is eating today."

This is very impressive, of course. That praise bears the stam of authority. A restaurateur here tried that out a month ago. But a gloomy patron wrote on the menu, "Yes but where?"

New York Day by Day

The "Shakedown" Girl

NEW YORK, March 24—This has been worst of all possible years for light ladies of Broadway. All the slick artifices from breach of promise suits to "tips for the wash room girl" fail in the panic.

In flush days a shake-down girl, following up an evening out with a philandering husband, had her conniving lawyer write him he had not done right by our Nell and did he propose to leave her waiting at the church? And she could live a year on the settlement.

Today such letters are returned with a jovial "Try to get it!" Goodfellows are stony. Their new Gilead is without balm. Anyway, the spenders are too busy just now playing hide-and-seek with bailiffs to appear in public with the most dazzling of charmers.

During the triad of boom years, it is estimated a million a year in such extortionate demands was squeezed out of the Broadway playboys. Two notoriously ratty lawyers levying such tribute are reported planning to close their offices and go into other business.

Many Circes, linked with Dot King, Vera Gordon and sundry sirens spreading their poisonous sheen amid the furious hotcha-cha, are "percentage girls" around elliptical bars of speakeasies. Overrouged and under-dressed. Chameleon-like and unpredictable.

These bars are edged with revolving stools and in the manner of the French cocotte girls angle for suckers to buy drinks, for which they receive 40 per cent. Such pickings are slim, but as one of them yawned: "It's this or the river."

Good Time Chucks are as scarce as cheer in Wall Street. Gold diggers prospered when the market was going up. When it hits bottom and stays, there are only crumbs. And for those pecking among golden nuggets so long, crumbs are a puny fare.

* * *

Broadway's newest banquet table wit seems to be an acid-tongued gentleman named Joe Cunningham, a Philadelphia cartoonist. He came into favor delivering Olympian flippancies at the celebrity nights of the Friars. After listening to lachrymose sentimentalities he finishes up the evening by roasting everybody, including the honored guest. And leaves them all blushing.

* * *

A gentleman, following heavy winnings in a dice game, appeared in a speakeasy, tossed down a half dozen cocktails and invited a lady near to join him. She did. Departing, he said: "Sister, would it offend if I slipped you a hundred dollar bill?" She replied: "It would. But be domineering."

* * *

Thingumbubs: Enrico Caruso's son is living in Hollywood and pals with his father's old friend, Andreas de Segurola . . . Alfred Lunt drives a flivver . . . Mrs. Ely Culbertson is known among friends as "The Duchess" . . . Clark and McCulloch have been stage partners 27 years and still share pay equally . . . Louis Calhern, playing the drawing room hound for years, proves himself the stage's most realistic tough guy . . . Frank Fay goes for green suits . . . And Barbara Stanwyck returned to Broadway after three years, lovelier than ever.

* * *

Kelcey Allen discovers the politest kibitzer in the world. After watching a pinochle game three hours without a word he inquires: "Gentlemen, will you excuse me if I leave?" And tip-toes out.

* * *

Top for graciousness with me was reached by an unguentary fellow in a boat train to London one late afternoon. I was reading a newspaper and holding a lighted cigarette when he announced in circumflex accent: "Pardon, but you are burning a hole in my shirt front." I not only was but had.

* * *

Eerie epistle: "I'm not interested in beyond the-grave phenomena. You know me as a materialist and truthful. Well then, passing a block in the 50's I saw a striking double of Valentino gazing into a window that proved to be the shop of his former wife, Natacha Rambova. Such coincidence inspires much spiritualistic nonsense."

Coincidence or not, crepe hanger, I'm sleeping tonight with all lights blazing full tilt.

Why the Wicked Flourish

THE RESPECTABLE world appealing to gangdom for help in finding a stolen child—you gasped when you read it, didn't you?

You thought, with mounting anger and bewilderment, of the growing number of atrocities — of the sudden, enormous power of the underworld. And now—this!

"It's unbelievable!" you cried. "Why, no one ever heard of such a thing when I was a child. Toughs stayed in their place. Decent people weren't at their mercy, as they are now. Something's wrong—something ought to be done—it almost seems as if there isn't any justice any more if good people can be treated like this—"

Yes, there is still justice. But justice isn't the sentimental affair we'd like it to be. Justice is grim. It follows every cause with a ruthless effect. It gives us what we ask for—by our secret thoughts, our careless deeds.

AND IF GOOD PEOPLE ARE BEING TREATED LIKE THIS, IT IS BECAUSE GOOD PEOPLE ASKED FOR IT.

This latest proof of gangdom's power wasn't an accident. It didn't happen simply because the Lindberghs were caught in a cruel trap. It came as the inevitable fruit of our own policy—or lack of policy.

God hasn't deserted the righteous. We have deserted ourselves. We have let ourselves get into this mess by our spineless shillyshallying . . . by our aimless drifting . . . by our conceit and stupidity and refusal to face facts.

And now we're whining and feeling terribly abused. Now we're crying that "it can't be possible—law and order must triumph"—

Don't fool yourself! Law and order HAVE triumphed. BUT THEY ARE THE GANGSTER'S LAW AND THE GANGSTER'S ORDER.

Our law and order have proved a farce. We have made laws that don't work. We have drifted and dawdled until we have no order left. And all this while, the underworld has been making a law and order for itself, that WILL work . . . the ruthless, uncompromising law of people who do not duck reality . . . the organized, controlled order of people who make a plan and see it through.

Why are we today truckling to the underworld?

BECAUSE THIS IS A SHOWDOWN.

The underworld is vigilantly, viciously on the OFFENSIVE. We are weakly, wobblingly on the DEFENSIVE.

The underworld knows what it wants and it is going after it. But we are spending our energy on preaching and pouting and being sorry for ourselves.

There's nothing new about this condition. Long ago King David, helplessly watching the sottish decline of a once strong nation, cried—

"I have seen the wicked in great power and spreading himself like a green bay tree . . .

"Lord, how long shall the wicked triumph? How long shall they speak hard things and the workers of iniquity boast of themselves?

"They break in pieces thy people, O Lord . . . they slay the widow and the stranger and murder the fatherless!"

The Israelites were said to be "God's chosen people." Yet the law of cause and effect worked as ruthlessly with them as with any outcast or savage. They dreamed while their enemy schemed. They drifted while their enemies acted.

And the day inevitably came when the walls of Jerusalem went down — and the bewildered, indignant Respectable Citizens were led, in shackles, into the enemy's land.

GOD HELPS THOSE WHO HELP THEMSELVES. And "to him that hath it shall be given" even though he be a racketeer.

And what can you and I do about it? That's easy. We can DO something, not just talk about it.

We can stop telling ourselves that we are the most wonderful people on earth and that nothing can happen to us because we are so good and smart and strong . . . and we can face the fact that PLENTY IS HAPPENING RIGHT NOW . . . AND UNLESS WE GET AS BUSY DOING GOOD AS THE GANGSTER IS GETTING BUSY BEING BAD, IT'S TAPS FOR AMERICA!

Counsel

'Twere better not be than ever have it said
You failed the trust men had in you or failed your fellow dead.

You'll find you'd rather not have been than have to be and know
That you have played the cheat for gain and sold yourself for show.

Though not by choice you came to earth to walk with low and high,
'Tis yours to choose the sort of man you'll be the day you die.

Though tricksters laugh behind your back and sharpers coldly sneer,
You brave the temporary loss and keep your conscience clear.

For since you're forced to walk through life go forth with head erect,
Give up whatever else you must, but keep your self-respect.

Too Bad to Be True

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Boston Evening American.

MR. MELLON IS PREPARING to leave in a few days to assume his duties as Ambassador to England. The other day the Washington Post, which usually reflects the views of the Administration, with uncanny accuracy, made the statement that the moment he reached London he would open negotiations to settle the debt question with England because of his sympathy with the English taxpayer. This article had many of the earmarks of authenticity.

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, consequently had it incorporated in the Congressional Record and made some pertinent observations. The article ascribed to Mr. Mellon the idea that it is unfair to ask England to pay in depreciated currency now that she has gone off the gold standard. In commenting, Senator Robinson said:

> "Why not look at the subject from the standpoint of the American taxpayer rather than from that of the British taxpayer? Is the interest of the British taxpayer the primary concern of the Administration in this distressing period? With the annual deficit of approximately two and a quarter billion dollars facing the Treasury, this Governmnet is going out of its way to reduce the amount which may be received from foreign debtor governments for the purpose of relieving their taxpayers from hardship and financial strain."

Made Much of England's Added Burden

In a statement given out by Mr. Mellon three months ago, and quoted by the Washington Post, the Administration paper, he made much of England's added burden in paying us in gold, since she has gone off the gold standard. Senator Reed calls attention to the fact that England "is receiving considerably more from the Continent than she is paying us"; and both he and Senator Robinson commented on the fact that by going off the gold standard England greatly has increased her foreign trade with nations that could not profitably trade with nations on the gold standard.

* * *

An Incredible Piece of Impertinence

But the important point raised by Senator Robinson is that notwithstanding the practically unanimous proclamation of the Congress that it will not ratify any agreement for the cancellation, or rather the transfer, of the debts of other nations to our own taxpayers we have the statement in an Administration paper in the capital that our new Ambassador to England "will reopen negotiations on the debt situation as soon as he has presented his letters of credence."

This would seem to be an incredible piece of impertinence but for the fact that the President has so frequently forgotten the limitations of his power. That the intent has been all along to transfer these debts to Americans, who loaned the money, is the conviction of leaders in House and Senate who were summoned to the White House, first on the moratorium, and then just before the visit of Laval. The reaction of these leaders was unfavorable.

* * *

No Denial From the White House

In the face of this, Mr. Mellon is being sent to London "to reopen negotiations on the debts as soon as he has presented his letters of credence." In the debate precipitated by Senator Robinson's action, no representative of the Administration undertook positively to deny the accuracy of the statement in the Administration organ. The best Senator Smoot could do was to express doubt, but he hastened to add: "I do not say that it is true or false because I do not know."

Senator Reed, an Administration man, who, nevertheless, vigorously opposed the cancellation of the debts, declared with great emphasis that the statement in the Administration organ "is absolutely and unqualifiedly false." But he spoke, not as one in the confidence of the Administration on the debt question, but as an opponent of cancellation, and to that extent an opponent of the original Administration intent. There has been no denial from the White House, from the State Department or from Mr. Mellon.

* * *

The Administration Itself Was Silent

For many years there have been advocates of a constitutional change providing seats in Senate or House for members of the Cabinet. One of the reasons urged, and Woodrow Wilson years ago urged it, is that in just such cases as this of Mr. Mellon the administration could be heard.

It would not be proper for a member of the Cabinet to have a vote, but there would be no impropriety in giving him a voice in the debates on matters pertaining to his department. In other countries they do these things better.

In England the members of the ministry or government are members of the Commons or the House of Lords; and whether a newspaper, close to the government, ascribes a purpose or policy to a department, an authentic and definite denial can be made on the spot. Here we have a long debate on the statement regarding Mr. Mellon—but the administration itself was silent.

All that Congress can do is to reiterate its determination not to transfer the debts of other nations to the taxpayers of this country; and thus give notice both to the Administration and other countries that no negotiations looking to that purpose will be ratified.

* * *

The Warning Has Been Sounded

The best assurance, however, that nothing more will be heard for a while about shifting Europe's tax burdens to Americans is in the perfect absurdity of the thing at a time when Americans have touched the bottom of depression.

It would be sheer insanity at a time when we ourselves have a two billion dollar deficit and are running behind more than $7,000,000 a day every day to assume the role of Lady Bountiful. We are preparing now, of necessity, to impose staggering tax burdens on our own people to maintain the credit of the nation.

It is therefore probable that Mr. Mellon, who unquestionably favored reduction or cancellation a short while ago, is not thinking of any such thing now. But, since an Administration paper quoted him, it is just as well that the debate in the Senate precipitated by Robinson has sounded a warning to the Administration, the American people and the English government.

Spring Cleaning Time Here

Give an Odd Job

Spring cleaning season is here. The Municipal Employment Bureau, reminding you of it, asks you to give a part-time job to some man or woman on its list of unemployed.

Here are a few of the things that need to be done at this time of year in the city and metropolitan area:

Repairing houses or bungalows.
Putting slipcovers on furniture for summer use.
Overhauling boats.
Polishing motor cars.
Working in hothouses, preparatory to outdoor planting.
Painting, papering, scrubbing, polishing—any of the thousand and one odd jobs around the home.

When warm weather comes there will be less need for part-time employment than there is NOW. Summer brings work on farms, at resorts and around golf courses, tennis and handball courts, swimming pools, etc. But until those jobs are open thousands in the city must find something to do, even if it is only for a few hours a week.

The Municipal Employment Bureau, directed by John J. Shields, is at 25 Church st., South End, Boston. Telephone Liberty 8607.

Give it a ring and give some jobless person a job.
